BIG DROP IN STEEL STOCKS

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—Steel common opened with a loss of 3½ points from yesterday's close to-day and then fell 1½ points lower to 53½, as the direct result of the government's suit to dissolve the Steel Trust filed at Trenton, N. J., yesterday. Preferred opened at 104½, or 4⅜ under yesterday's close.

Tremendous excitement marked the opening and the entire market showed extreme weakness in sympathy with the break in Steel issues.

Union Pacific opened off 1 point; Atchison, 2; American Smelting, 1⅝; Lehigh Valley, 1⅝; American Beet Sugar, 1⅛; Reading, 1¾; Great Northern Ore, ½, and practically all of the other issues showed considerable losses.

In London there was an extreme slump of 7 points in U. S. Steel common, following the announcement of the U. S. Government suit.

American railway shares generally sympathized, but the group, although feverish, was above the lowest prices.

In other directions strength was displayed.

Serving Papers in Suit.

A roundup of the group of financial giants composing the guiding forces of the United States Steel Corporation, to serve upon them copies of the dissolution suit which the United States government filed against the "billion dollar trust" in the Federal Court at Trenton, N. J., yesterday, was started in this city to-day.

The task of serving the defendants, which involved the task of storming the barriers that wealth had built up around the "steel group," was in charge of United States Marshal Woodbury Snowden of Trenton. He and his agents planned first to serve J. Pierpont Morgan, Andrew Carnegie, John D. Rockefeller, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Charles M. Schwab, Henry Clay Frick and others of their multi-millionaire assistants with copies of the bill in the government's suit.

Judge E. H. Gary, chairman of the Board of Directors and the actual head of the trust, was the first man served. He was handed a copy of the bill in the Waldorf Astoria Hotel last night. He was the first man to meet official notice of the suit through the medium of a subpoena.

To Serve Subpoenas Later.

Marshal Snowden was under instructions to solicit the aid of U. S. Marshal Henkel, of this city, owing to the unfamiliarity of the New Jersey official with the habits and personal appearance of the financiers. The assistance of the entire staff of United States deputy marshal was placed at the disposal of Marshal Snowden.

A second serving of papers will be made in the form of a subpoena requiring the defendants to answer to the government's complaint at Trenton on the first Monday in December.

Judge Gary, when asked for a statement, said:

"I shall issue no report of the statement to-day. I was served with notice of the suit about 7 o'clock last evening by a marshal from Trenton, who came to my apartments here in the Waldorf. That is all I have to say."

This suit, which is the most sweeping anti-trust action ever instituted by the Department of Justice, is the result of more than three years' investigation conducted by special agents of the government. The Department of Justice stated that the evidence it gathered had been supplemented by testimony given before the Stanley Committee of the House of Representatives.

There were hastily called conferences of all the directors who are in this city. To-day Morgan, Judge Gary and other directors and counsel for the Trust are in ses-

GOV. FOSS HITS LODGE MACHINE

LOWELL, Oct. 27.—Governor Foss, in speeches here and in Lawrence and Haverhill, charged that under the rule of the Lodge machine the State has been robbed in its grade crossing work through inefficient inspection on the part of officials; that the commissions are used as asylums for unemployed Republican politicians and that the labor of prisoners at Charlestown is given to contractors free.

He flayed the railroad commission, as an example, for having made no adequate examination of railroad assets as a condition of allowing new stock and bond issues. He declared that the results even of such inspections as have been made by the board have been suppressed and that the public has been denied the right to see them.

He also criticized the manner in which the bank commissioner's office has been treated by the Legislature, saying that it is not furnished with the facilities for conducting an adequate examination of the banks.

Arraigns Lodge Machine.

The speech created a sensation in each of the places where it was delivered, and it marked the first departure of Governor Foss from the battle ground prepared for him by Senator Lodge and his machine manager. The Governor brought the campaign back to State issues with a broadside that is intended to force Mr. Lodge's governorship candidate, Louis A. Frothingham, and the other chosen ones of the machine's henchmen to talk State government.

Large crowds were the rule in each of three big manufacturing centres. Lowell City Hall was comfortably filled with an audience that went wild as the governor arraigned Mr. Lodge's proxy government on Beacon Hill. At Lawrence the Opera House held a large audience, while at Haverhill the City Hall was packed to the doors and a large number of women filled the gallery.

David I. Walsh of Fitchburg, the candidate for Lieutenant-Governor, also spoke at each of the three places, dealing with the record made by Governor Foss. At Haverhill, Mr. Walsh was cheered and applauded for fully five minutes after he had finished, the audience never letting up until the Lieutenant-Governor candidate had stepped to the front of the platform and thanked those present for their demonstration.

Frank J. Donahue, candidate for Secretary of State, and Charles G. Strecker, candidate for Auditor, also spoke at all three meetings, while Congressman James M. Curley opened the Lawrence rally and spoke later in this city. He was enthusiastically received in both places.

Urges Business Methods.

Governor Foss said, in part:

"Efficient conduct of public business is of material interest to every citizen. The best public service cannot be rendered by a party machine. Voters of all parties demand a business administration. By electing me Governor the people of Massachusetts gave me orders to get things done for their welfare. They ordered me to remove machinery that had served only the purpose of Republican politics and to

TWO REPUBLICANS IN QUINCY CONTEST

There are two candidates for the Republican nomination for Mayor of Quincy, John L. Miller, a granite manufacturer, and Eugene R. Stone, president of the Board of Trade. Mr. Miller is school committee chairman. Mr. Stone was the party candidate in 1908, but was defeated by Mayor William T. Shea.

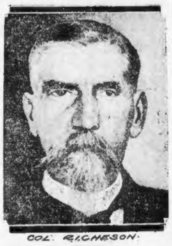
THOMAS RICHESON, FATHER OF PASTOR NOW IN PRISON



COL. RICHESON.

RICHESON, SR., LOYAL TO BOY

Thomas Varland Richeson has given a new significance to a much abused phrase, "the typical Southern gentleman."

Many in New England have had an idea that the Southern gentleman existed only between the covers of a book, or behind the footlights of the stage. He seemed almost too good to be true, like knights of old who rushed gloriously to the help of the persecuted and the oppressed. He was almost like the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow.

But the Southern gentleman is here, in the flesh.

In the books and on the stage he is courtesy itself. He is bravery personified. He is loyalty and love. One of his characteristics is his love for and belief in the members of his family.

New England had been about as inviting to Colonel Richeson as the North Pole. He knew as little about New England sympathy as the untravelled New Englander can know of Southern hospitality. But his own son, flesh of his flesh, blood of his blood, was charged with a terrible crime.

And so Thomas Varland Richeson came to that North which had seemed so forbidding, and has found here that sympathy and understanding which make the whole world kin. He came promptly. There was no delay, no time for study and inquiry. A conference with his attorney and he was off for New England on the first train.

Opinions are bound to differ with regard to the guilt or innocence of the young man accused of the killing of Avis Linnell. He will have a fair trial before a jury of his peers. New Englanders will abide by the verdict.

In the meantime there is but one opinion about the young clergyman's father. Thomas Varland Richeson, who will tell Sunday AMERICAN readers next Sunday "The Story of My Boy," impresses all who meet him as—at last!—the "typical Southern gentleman."

GLOVER CASE MAY NOT COME UP UNTIL MAY

The Glover will case in the Supreme Court, East Cambridge, has been postponed until next week, with the probability of not coming up at this session of the court. The case was the first on the list when the Supreme Court opened, but by agreement of attorneys was placed at the end of the court list. The press of court business makes it appear now as if it will go over to the May session.

PROCLAIM PRESIDENT OF CHINA

PEKIN, Oct. 27.—General Li Yuan-Heng, the revolutionary leader, to-day notified all the foreign consuls in Hankow that he has proclaimed himself President of the new Chinese republic, according to advices received here.

The government to-day received official assurance that War Minister Yin-Tchang had not been assassinated as was reported. An imperial decree was immediately issued, recalling General Yin-Tchang from the first division, which he has been leading and supplanting him by General Feng-Kwo-Chang.

Both the First Division and the Second Division, the latter under command of General Yuan-Shi-Kai, have been ordered to move on Hankow, ostensibly forcing, and supplanting him by General Feng-Hankow Railroad from the hands of the rebels.

TWO-YEAR-OLD SHOT "HELPING" TO HUNT

HOULTON, Me., Oct. 27.—Two-year-old Thomas Bowles, who wanted to "help" his brother shoot a partridge, is in the Aroostook County Hospital, while a doctor is extracting half a charge of bird shot from his face and neck. He is the youngest hunting accident victim in Maine this season. The bird alighted on an apple tree in the yard, and Tommy's older brother, Sam, took the shotgun and started to creep up on the bird with Tommy toddling on behind him. Sam stubbed his toe and fell down, the gun went off against a rock and the charge rebounded.

ASK BIDS ON 10-YEAR GARBAGE CONTRACT

Bids for the disposal of the city's garbage for the next ten years beginning July 1, 1912, were advertised in the City Record to-day by Public Works Commissioner Rourke, who expects to obtain figures that will warrant the Mayor and the Council approving the contract at an early date. The bids, which must be accompanied by a certified check for $10,000, will be opened at City Hall on Tuesday, December 5, at 12 o'clock. The terms of the new contract provide that the city arrange for a site for a garbage disposal plant on Spectacle Island, and erect at its own expense six concrete receiving stations.

INEZ HANSCOMB, WHO TOLD PASTOR OF LINNELL DEATH

Miss Hanscomb informed Rev. Clarence Richeson that Miss Linnell was dead. She is an important witness, the pastor's answer being regarded as significant.

JOHN D. LEE TO DEFEND PASTOR

LYNCHBURG, Va., Oct. 27.—It was learned to-day that John D. Lee, the most famous criminal lawyer in the South, has been retained to lead the defence of the Rev. Clarence V. T. Richeson, now under arrest in Boston charged with the death of his fiancee.

Just who has engaged the services of this noted advocate has not been made plain. He refused to affirm or deny the report that he was going to Boston when spoken to this morning. He said he had heard about the Richeson case. Later he said that there was a chance that he might not be in town within the next few days.

If Mr. Lee goes to Boston, it is almost a certainty that he will, the Richeson murder trial will assume tenfold more dramatic features than has been dreamed of in all its prospective phases. This eminent Southern advocate has a number of notable legal scalps attached to his belt. He was the leading counsel for the defence in the famous Hargis Kentucky feud case. He defended successfully Judge Lovering in the famous Virginia case of "The unwritten law." He was also counsel for the defence in the case of J. Samuel McCue, a former Mayor of Charlottesville, Va., who was tried for slaying his wife. The McCue case was the only notable battle lost by Mr. Lee. Efforts were made to bring him into the Beattie trial in Richmond a few weeks ago, but his practice prevented.

LINNELL JURY HEARS 11 GIRLS IN POISON CASE

M. Grant Edmands, the father of Miss Violet Edmands, to whom the Rev. Dr. Clarence Richeson is engaged to be married, was the first witness to-day before the Grand Jury in the inquiry into the murder of Avis Linnell, with which Richeson is charged. He entered the Grand Jury room at 10 o'clock.

Many women, prominent in church and social circles of Greater Boston, were startled to-day when they learned the Boston police have determined to obtain a large number of love letters and photographs said to have been removed from the room of the Rev. Dr. Richeson by a private detective.

CALLED BEFORE THE DISTRICT ATTORNEY.

This detective has been grilled by the District Attorney. It is understood that the detective visited the room of Richeson and found bundles of letters and scores of photographs from the admirers of the handsome, brilliant and fascinating young clergyman.

This was one of the developments of the great murder mystery to-day when fully a dozen young women and as many men waited at the county courthouse in Pemberton square to be called before the special session of the Grand Jury that is considering the murder of Avis Linnell.

Church Officials to Meet.

It was learned to-day that the finance committee and other members of the Cambridge Baptist Immanuel Church will meet to-night after prayer meeting and consider what is best for the church in view of the arrest of the pastor for murder.

This was understood to be the attitude of the church, to-day, as learned from one of the prominent members.

Some of the members want to discharge Richeson at once. Others want to suspend judgment. It was finally agreed that no action would be taken until after the finding of the Grand Jury is made known.

If the Grand Jury indicts Richeson, and he has not resigned by that time, he will be discharged. If the Grand Jury fails to indict him, no action will be taken for the present.

Pastor's Letter Ignored.

This decision of the church was communicated to the Dunbars, attorneys for the clergyman, and it is believed that within forty-eight hours Richeson will resign. The church sent him no letter in reply to his short one, asking that the church take no action if they still had faith in him.

Another important witness who is scheduled to testify before the Grand Jury to-day is a prominent police official, who is said to have shadowed every move made by Detective Burns in the interest of the defence. This man is said to have unearthed information of great value to the prosecution which it is thought will be presented to the Grand Jury following the second appearance of Burns upon the stand to-day.

The police have in their possession all of the personal belongings left by Richeson in his Cambridge room.

Twenty packing cases, comprising two wagonloads, were used to transport the articles from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carter at No. 147 Magazine street, Cambridge, to the court house. Most of the cases were filled with books, but the list of articles also includes papers and manuscripts and personal belongings of the accused minister.

Two police captains were sent to the house in Cambridge to "clean out" the pastor's rooms.

The police visit to the Carter home was the result of startling information to the effect that the clergyman mixed a paste and used poison in connection with it at the home of Carter, on Thursday, October 12, two days before the Hyannis choir singer was poisoned.

The story of the new evidence is that Richeson, when Mrs. Carter was busy with her housework, asked her for some flour and water paste, saying that he wanted it to repair the bindings on some of his theological books.

Mrs. Carter is said to have made the paste and Richeson took it to his room. A short time afterward he returned to the kitchen and held out to her the bowl in which the paste had been mixed and it is reported he said:

"Mrs. Carter, I have an engagement I must keep and I have no time to wash this bowl thoroughly. Be sure you wash it well, for there has been poison in it."

Used to Hold Medicine.

The significance of this incident is shown by the fact that it would not be impossible for anyone to make pills, or konseals, out of flour and water, place cyanide or other crystallized poisons in them and give them to another as medicine furnished by a physician or a druggist.

In fact, konseals on sale at drug stores and used as containers for medicine are made out of barley flour and water, the only difference between them and the home-made article being that a mould is used to get them smooth and well-shaped.

If it is true that Richeson did get this paste and that he did mix poison with it, it may have been done, his friends point out, to make the paste more adhesive and of greater value in repairing his books. Druggists asked about the matter to-day said that they had never heard of poisons being used to give strength to paste.

When Mrs. Carter was asked whether the story was true she replied:

Women Refuses to Talk.

"We have been ordered not to discuss this case with any one."

The story, if true, throws an entirely new light on the method that might have been used to give the poison to Miss Linnell and also may mean that there was no necessity of exhuming the body of the girl to search for the vessel in which it was assumed the deadly crystals had been given to her.

This theory would explain why Miss Lin-

"BUT," the stout-hearted old man is quick to add, "He is NOT guilty!"

The SUNDAY AMERICAN has made every arrangement for the EXCLUSIVE publication of Colonel Richeson's story of "MY BOY." The first instalment will appear in next SUNDAY'S AMERICAN. Innocent or guilty—and guilt or innocence is yet to be established—the Rev. Clarence Richeson is to-day the CENTRAL FIGURE in the mystery of Avis Linnell. New England wants to know the story of Richeson's family, boyhood, youth, college days and entrance to the ministry. Who can tell that story better than the young man's father? The SUNDAY AMERICAN has sent ALL THE WAY TO VIRGINIA to assemble a collection of photographs of people, institutions and scenes in and about Amherst Court House. # FOSS TELLS HOW FUNDS OF STATE ARE WASTED substitute efficient government machinery in its place.

"The first step in any work is to get the facts. I adopted the business method of investigation by impartial experts. As a matter of fact, the Walker law, making it the Governor's duty to pass upon appropriations before they are submitted to the Legislature, made this necessary.

"The first fact is this: The whole business organization of the Commonwealth has been used, not as a business concern, but as a political opportunity to retain thousands of men on the public payroll. That is the way the great power of the Republican machine in this State has been built up.

"How long do you suppose the stockholders in a business concern would stand for that sort of thing—when they found it out? And yet the public business of Massachusetts is capable of being put on a business basis; it can be separated from machine control; it can be made efficient and progressive. And that is exactly what I have started out to do.

"My opponent has tried to make campaign material out of the cost of this investigation. But I have personally spent in my own business, time and again, more money than this in order to get necessary information to guide me in the future conduct of that business.

"To say that the State of Massachusetts cannot afford to have its business methods investigated for the purpose of improving them shows the calibre of the person who makes such a criticism. It is a proof of the attitude he would take toward the business of the State and it proves doubly that the man who cannot frankly accept and indorse a businesslike investigation of this character is not himself the man fitted to have anything to do with the public business.

The management of our State finances is utterly lax. Not even the auditor nor the treasurer knows at any time what the actual financial condition of the State is. The balances that are drawn up do not show the actual assets or the actual liabilities at any time.

"Moreover, the supervision of county accounts has broken down utterly. Harvey Chase found that there was no sort of order or system in these accounts. Different counties vary 50 or 100 per cent. from each other in their rates of expenditure for certain items. Take the Cambridge jail, for example, in which $130 is paid per annum for the salaries of officers per prisoner, while in Worcester one-half this sum suffices. The same ratio holds in the cost of feeding the prisoners. I maintain that the only way in which Massachusetts can reach efficiency in the expenditure of State and county funds is through a State Finance Commission with adequate powers to supervise all such expenses.

"I have proved that the administration of our State commissions has become so lax and unbusinesslike that it has resulted in very poor efficiency. For example, the railroad commission has not carried on any adequate examination of railroad assets as a condition of allowing new stock and bond issues. The people do not know whether these railroad securities represent actual value or not. The commission has been in the habit of suppressing even the reports of its investigators, not permitting the public to have them. The examination of our banking institutions by the State commission has been equally imperfect. In the next place, our bank commissioners' office is not furnished with facilities by the Legislature for conducting adequate examination of banks.

"This condition has gone along for so many years without protest even by the commission itself that the only possible hope of reform was to bring the matter frankly to the attention of the people and the Legislature; and this I did. The State undoubtedly needs several powerful commissions to have charge of important branches of the public business. But in the past so many small and practically powerless commissions have been created for political purposes that the whole system of supervision by commission has been brought almost to ridicule. I intend to see that this utterly unbusinesslike condition is stopped and that a well organized and well supported public utilities commission is created.

Worcester Crossing Case.

"Nobody can say that this is not a businesslike and progressive suggestion. For example, the recent disclosures of fraud in connection with cost of grade crossings in Worcester show exactly how our present methods fail to safeguard the public. The public has paid about $16,000,000 for its share of the work of removing grade crossings. This money has been paid on the assumption that a certain grade of work was being done. The State's grade crossing engineer is supposed to inspect this work on behalf of the public; but in a recent hearing before the Aldermen of Worcester he testified that no such actual inspection had been made. Competent engineers have examined the material and reported that the contractors were undoubtedly saving from seventy cents to one dollar a cubic yard on the work. Here again is a case where we cannot tell how much the public has lost under the very noses of the authorities through collusion, fraud or inefficiency.

"I found that our reformatories for men and women, boys and girls, do not even pretend to classify their inmates in a way to protect the young offenders from contact with confirmed criminals.

"Even the State Prison methods are open to immediate improvement; not only improvement, but urgently needed reform. I showed that the prisoners were being worked under a system where their labor was thrown in free to an agent who marketed their products in the open market. I showed that this system was intolerable; that it was disgraceful for the Commonwealth to permit it, now that it had been made public.

"The Republican machine immediately criticised me for mentioning this delicate subject; and, when that wouldn't go down, they denied the whole thing. But you are aware that the Legislature has ordered that the penal labor system of the State be subjected to a thorough legislative study to see how it could be improved.

"My opponents cannot get away with these facts. Denunciation of me is of no avail whatever. What the people want is immediate improvement in the business methods of the State. My opponents try to cover up the whole story by means of abuse heaped upon me.

Improvement Needed.

"Do you want improvement of State methods and institutions, or does the State want to stand pat on all these tremendously important social matters? You must remember that the frame of mind of the stand-patter regarding the tariff is equalled by his attitude toward all progressive measures of State administration. He does not want change or improvement.

"You have all heard the howls of the Republican machine that my investigation of the State business brought criticism upon the Commonwealth, and I am going to ask you, right here, if any one of you is afraid of honest criticism? I am going to ask you if you think the public business of Massachusetts is too sacred to be looked into on modern business lines?

"My opponent's policy of running the State business would be just as lacking in any sort of progressive idea as his platform is.

"You need business management in the public business of the State. When I am re-elected, with a helpful Legislature, I intend to get it done."

Walsh Praises Foss.

David I. Walsh arraigned the Republican machine for the part it played in engrafting the enrollment feature on to the direct primaries act. Also, he blamed Robert Luce as the inventor of the plan, it having been the Republican candidate for Lieutenant-Governor who first devised it and who made it part of his original caucus act.

Mr. Walsh declared that that feature of new law, if it is allowed to stand, will undo all the work of a generation in securing a secret ballot. He declared that it made conditions worse than they were under the old scheme which preceded the adoption of the Australian ballot.

He said that it gave the unscrupulous employer absolute control of the politics of the timid workingman, and it made a public record of the fact—a record that the State itself guaranteed to be correct—that the orders of the boss were either obeyed or disobeyed. It placed a collar around the neck of every man who was dependent on the good will of another, he said, and intrenched the political machine more firmly than it has been before in years.

The fact that 400,000 persons in Massachusetts have been deprived of the right to sign nomination papers for any candidates next year, he said, was only a small part of the harm done by the enrollment feature of the act.

Donahue Raps Langtry.

Mr. Donahue discussed State issues also, praising Governor Foss, and denouncing the record made by his own opponent, Secretary of State Langtry, which, he said, had voted for every machine measure that had come to him as a legislator and he had voted for every measure that in any degree might be called progressive or humanitarian. Mr. Donahue instanced the 54-hour law, the eight-hour day, the measure permitting trades unions to fine their members to enforce strikes, and the income tax bills, as specific instances in which Mr. Langtry had voted nay. He also said that Mr. Lodge's secretary of state, had been the most conspicuous absentee from his duties that the State had ever had in any department.

Mr. Strecker denounced the administration of the State's fiscal affairs and declared that if he be elected, he will institute reforms that will give the Commonwealth value for value for every dollar expended, promising that he would pass no voucher until he had become satisfied beyond a doubt that the money called for represented an honest debt.

This evening Governor Foss will be joined by a big band of campaigners, who will speak at rallies in Brookline, Natick, Norwood and Walpole. The Governor and Mr. Walsh will separate for the first time since the touring began, the latter being slated for two open-air rallies in Lynn, the first in Market square, the next in Houghton square, and also for speeches in Minton Hall, Ward 23, in the Municipal Building, Columbia Road, Dorchester, and in East Cambridge.

With Governor Foss's brigade of campaigners will be Edmund A. Whitman, Adjutant-General Fisher H. Pearson of Lowell, former Congressman Joseph F. O'Connell of Ward 20, Congressman James M. Curley, Congressman William F. Murray, Frank J. Donahue, Charles G. Strecker, Thomas J. Fay of Ward 18 and William H. O'Brien.

New Victor Records.

Two records by the wonderful Paderewski, who retains his inimitable charm and beautiful delicacy of touch, form part of the November list of new Victor records. They are the "Valse Brillante" from the Chopin group and the familiar "Minuet in G." These two form the first of the eagerly awaited Paderewski records. Another blue-ribbon accession to the November list is Ellen Terry's recitation of portions of Shakespeare's works. Haydn's oratorio "The Creation;" Sammarco's vocal rendition of the great Rigoletto Soliloquy; a Neapolitan song by Scotti, songs by Alma Gluck, Gerville-Reache, Janet Spencer, Evan Williams and John McCormack add to the November list.

In lighter vein are such as "Billy" by the American Quartet; "The Red Rose Rag" by Billy Murray; Ada Jones' coon song, "He's Comin' Back," and Golden and Hughes with "Whistling Pete."

Gems from "Carmen" by the Victor Light Opera Orchestra, a brilliant two-step, "The Life Preserver" and "Girls of Baden Waltz" by the Victor Dance Orchestra, are delightful. All these new records and others may be heard at the Oliver Ditson Company, No. 150 Tremont street.

Burdens Lifted from Bent Backs

A bad back is a heavy handicap to those who work. Nine times out of ten it is due to sick kidneys. The only way to find relief is to cure the kidneys. Doan's Kidney Pills have given strong backs to thousands of men and women.

EVERY PICTURE TELLS A STORY
"My back's no good any more"

G. A. Craig, 51 Hancock St., Boston, Mass., says: "My body was constantly racked with pain and I was so nervous I could not sit still. I had a dragging pain in the small of my back, my feet and ankles swelled. I had dizzy spells and was annoyed by too frequent passages of the kidney secretions. Physicians did not seem to understand my case. Doan's Kidney Pills brought prompt relief and soon every symptom of my trouble disappeared. I have never had any cause for complaint since."

Remember the name—Doan's.

FEDERAL PROBE FOR M'NAMARAS

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 27.—That the prosecution in the McNamara case is back of the movement toi nduce the Federal Government to investigate the Los Angeles Times plant explosion because it lacks evidence to convict the labor leaders was the assertion made to-day by counsel for the defence.

It was believed that the whole aspect of the case might be changed by the action of the Federal authorities, and that the McNamaras, under nineteen indictments for murder in the destruction of the Los Angeles Times building, might enter upon an entirely changed legal status.

It was admitted that the investigation might make it easier for the prosecution to institute proceedings to obtain certain records the Indiana authorities have refused to give up.

Lack of evidence was said to be one of the reasons why James B. McNamara's case is tried first. Should an indictment result from the Indianapolis investigation, there is legal possibility that he would oe taken back there.

This could be done under an order from a United States commissioner after a hearing instituted upon receipt of certified copy of the indictment. Such indictment was raised against the question of McNamara's extradition from Indiana to California.

United States District-Attorney Aloysius McCormick said he had received no information concerning the case from the eastern Federal authorities, nor had he sent any to them.

The reports from Indianapolis that a Federal grand jury would investigate the case supplied a theme for serious consideration by counsel for the defence, and attracted attention in the office of District-Attorney John D. Fredericks as well. Clarence S. Darrow, chief of counsel for the defence, telegraph to Indianapolis for more information.

DYSPEPSIA-PROOF

How Any Meal Can Be Thoroughly Enjoyed by Any Stomach.

Costs You Nothing to Try Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Men, as a rule, are first discovered by their enemies. Their antagonists turn on the searchlight, and the proof of merit will lie in being able to stand the flash.

It was only in this way that Mr. White ever knew that dyspepsia was one of Mr. Black's worst enemies. Sitting face to face at a two-by-four table, he handed his afflicted friend the bill of fare:

Oyster Cocktail. Stuffed Olives.
Boston Clam Chowder.
Strained Gumbo.
Sirloin Steak with Mushrooms.
Roast Beef Hash.
Boiled Ox Tongue with Sauerkraut.
Lobster a la Newburg.
Baked Pork and Beans.
Combination Crab Salad.
Hot Mince Pie.
Pineapple Fritters.

Mr. White ordered a "little of each." Mr Dyspepsia Black ordered crackers and a glass of milk. "I had such a big breakfast this morning," he said, "that I'll just take a bite to keep you company." But Mr. White could not be deceived: "I am afraid you can't stand the gleam, Mr. Black. Why don't you say you have dyspepsia and be done with it? You'll always have that hungry look anyhow as long as you have dyspepsia. Now listen. My stomach was in just as bad condition as yours at one time. But now I can eat anything, at any time. For instance, this clam chowder or sirloin steak or even the lobster would be just as welcome to my stomach as your crackers and milk. You don't realize how this dyspepsia business is robbing you of your spirit, of your energy and ability to think quickly. I can't help notice it. You haven't the cheer and sociability you had three months ago. Now I'll tell you what to do," and thereat the cheerful Mr. White took a vial from his pocket and extracted a wee tablet. "There, there is a tablet that contains an ingredient, one grain of which digests 3,000 grains of food. For even the worst dyspeptic it's the only thing that really gives relief. The reason is it relieves the stomach of nearly all the work it has to do, digests everything in the stomach and stimulates the gastric juice. I can't get along without them. They are Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. You can get them anywhere on earth for 50c a package."

Yes, it is true, Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, absolutely stop heartburn, nausea, indigestion, dyspepsia of the worst type, sour stomach, bloaty feeling and all eructations and irritation, and freshen and invigorate the stomach. They cheer you up, and make you get all the good there is in your food. You will forget you ever had a stomach to worry you.

Send us your name and address today and we will at once send you by mail a sample package free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

INTOXICATING HOP-SKY

By MORTON BIRGE.

Among the songs those Russians sang at Boston Opera House one night
Is one whose name is causing me successive spasms of delight.
It's this:
"Beyond the River Grows Intoxicating Hop;
There Lives My Darling."
Imagine strolling up the pike by any Boston singing shop
And hearing some pale tenor voice bleat out about this place of "Hop."
(Does he mean Cambridge or [illegible]

Could some brave lad from Charlestown or from Somerville
Engaging to sing such a song and have his audience keep still?
Answer—"No, abso-blooming-lutely, NO!"
Some highbrow may rise up and say that educated persons should Be posted on this Russian "Hop," which highbrow people know is good.
("Down Where the Wurtzburger Flows" isn't so bad.)
But, honest, did you ever strike, in all the works of sons of men
A title for a song like that. Just chew it over once again:
"Beyond the River Grows Intoxicating Hop, etc., etc."

Suppose one tries to localize that song and make it fit this town.
How would it do to grab your pen and lightly jot this title down
"Beyond the Mystic's an Intoxicated Cop;
He Pinched My Darling."?
Notes—(a) That song must sound bully in Russian.
(b) Pity the artist who's got to illustrate this.
(c) Good night!

DR. WILEY HITS SCHOOL STUDIES

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—Dr. Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard University, was elected president of the National Unitarian conference. The vice-presidents named were Adelbert Moot, Buffalo; Hugh M. Landin, Indianapolis; Louis A. Frothingham, Boston, and Charles A. Murdock, San Francisco.

Dr. Harvey T. Wiley, chief of the Chemistry Bureau of the Department of Agriculture, attacked many things taught in the public schools.

"Teach the children the dignity of labor and that the breaking of a promise is wrong, and you will be making a good start in improving conditions," said Dr. Wiley. "Throw out of a curriculum of the schools such subjects as chemistry, botany, and, in fact, all the sciences, and teach the children more practical things."

Dr. Wiley declared the system of weights and measures as taught in the public schools was a disgrace, and urged that the decimal system be substituted. He said he had repeatedly asked Congress to make the system compulsory, but that the manufacturers had always opposed him.

AUTOPSY TO-DAY ON MALDEN DEATH CASE

An autopsy will be performed to-day on the death of John Edward Barker, a carpenter and builder, of No. 26 Lawrence street, Malden, who was found by his wife in his barn in the rear of his home. Medical Examiner Thomas M. Durell of Somerville said that death was probably due to natural causes. Mr. Barker was forty-nine years old and is survived by his widow and two children.

ALLEN B. FARMER WEDS NEW YORK GIRL

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—In the Church of the Messiah Miss Natalie Morrison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David M. Morrison, of No. 20 East Forty-ninth street, was married to Allen B. Farmer of Boston. The bride wore a gown of white satin with court train embroidered in pearls and rhinestones and a veil of old point lace fastened with a spray of orange blossoms. She was attended by her sister, Miss Abby P. Morrison, and Misses Hopeton Atterbury, Martha Orr, Dorothy Smith and Susanne Merrill.

PEDLER HELD FOR GEM THEFT

Joseph Weiss, a toy peddler, of No. 146 Essex street, New York city, arrested on a charge of breaking and entering the jewelry store of Philip Rublin at No. 323 Tremont street, February 12, was held in $8,000 bail by Judge Sanderson in Superior Court.

A side door of the store was forced open, the back of the safe was torn out and the intruders got away with jewelry and silver ware valued at $5,000.

EAST BOSTON SCHOOL CLUBS ORGANIZED

JUDGE ATTACKS COLLEGE EVILS

WORCESTER, Oct. 27.—Judge John B. Ratigan, speaking at the banquet at the ninth observance of Holy Cross night at Holy Cross College before a large attendance of alumni, criticised commercialism in colleges.

"Commercialism is fast creeping into the colleges of to-day, especially in athletics, and in social matters," he said. "The opportunities of college days to idle away time through these amusements is destroying the spirit and fruit of many a college, for thus boys develop habits that make them totally unfit for the battle with the world. The course of Holy Cross, if properly attended to, will give us more able men, and I may say that in the world there is room for every man of proper abilities."

ICE NEARLY READY FOR FIRST SKATING

One of the features of the benefit entertainment in aid of the Free Hospital for Women, to take place at the Boston Arena on November 11, will be general skating after the regular program. This will be the first ice skating at the Arena for the season. The benefit will include many unique events. Arrangements are under supervision of Mrs. Harold Baker.

$600 FIRE LOSS FOR PATROLMAN

While Edward F. Brennan, patrolman attached to Lagrange street station, was reporting for duty to-day there was a fire in his home at No. 3 Norfolk street, Dorchester. The cause was a defective chimney and did $600 damage.

MAD EMPRESS RECALLS NAME

PARIS, Oct. 27.—For the first time in forty-four years the ex-Empress Charlotte of Mexico, wh obecame insane on the execution of the Emperor Maximilian in 1867, has pronounced the name of her dead husband.

Still hopelessly demented, she wanders aimlessly about the beautiful park of Bouchot, Belgium, where she reside with a lady in waiting and a physician and nurse.

Only lately have her entourage heard the hapless Empress murmur vacantly the name which never passed her lips since the bullets of Mexican revolutionaries, in slaying her husband, extinguished her reason. Her health is improving.

MARRIED AT 3 A. M. AFTER LONG SEARCH

WINSTED, Ct., Oct. 27.—Edwin J. Carpenter, thirty-six, divorced, of Goshen, and Miss Katherine A. McCaul, sixteen, daughter of Paul B. McCaul of Litchfield, were married in the parsonage at Goshen at 3 a. m. The bride's father witnessed the ceremony. The couple went to Torrington in the early part of the night and got a marriage license, but nobody there would marry them. They drove to Goshen at midnight, took out another marriage license, and after picking up the father, were finally married.

SEVEN GERMAN SEAMEN DROWNED

BERLIN, Oct. 27.—Seven seamen of the German cruiser Muenchen were drowned at Kiel to-day when a boat that was being lowered from the warship was upset.

VISITS ACCUSED WIFE IN JAIL

BATH, Me., Oct. 27.—Mrs. Mildred Keefe, who is locked in the County Building charged with the murder of her child, was visited in her cell by Martin Keefe, father of the dead boy. Keefe was at sea when the alleged murder took place. With tears in his eyes he begged that his wife tell him the whole story connected with the death of the baby, but Mrs. Keefe refused, simply saying that she had been ordered by her attorneys not to discuss the case with anyone.

Mr. Keefe reminded her of the threat which he claims she made, that she would drown the child before she would ever let him have his son again, but to no effect.

FIND CLEW TO WOMAN SLAYER

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 27.—Coroner Durham believes the guilty person in the mysterious murder of Dr. Helen Knabe, whose body was found in her apartments Tuesday morning, was a medical expert.

A well dressed man, about forty years old, was seen to come out of an alley in the rear of the apartment house, and as he walked down the street he held a handkerchief to his face. This was about 2 o'clock in the morning, or an hour or two after the crime is supposed to have been committed. This would have given him time—if he were the murderer—to clean up the room in which the murder occurred. The man who saw the mysterious stranger is S. C. Carr, a bookkeeper, who was on his way home.

Nearly everybody in Boston reads the AMERICAN.

JOHN D. LEE, NOTED VIRGINIAN, WILL HELP DEFEND RICHESON

Pastor's Father Goes Home, Confident Accused Will Be Freed at Trial.

nell lived so long after taking the poison. Had she swallowed the fatal crystals after taking a drink of water she would have died almost instantly, physicians say, but if the poison was contained in a pill or a bonseal the latter would have taken some time to dissolve in the stomach before liberating the cyanide.

The removal of Richeson's belongings was conducted as secretly as possible and each of the wagons, filled with his effects, was guarded by a police captain on the way from Cambridge to the courthouse. Apparently nothing was left in Richeson's rooms.

The defence denies Pastor Richeson's relations with Miss Avis Linnell, the murdered girl, were other than proper and honorable and Detective Burns is said to be working to secure evidence against another man, who may have been responsible for the girl's condition.

It is believed the defence has taken this means to try to offset the stories of the girl friends of Miss Avis Linnell at the Young Women's Christian Association building on Warrenton street, where she died, who declared to the police that Pastor Richeson was the only man in the innocent girl's life.

It is understood on reliable authority that the dress suit case and its contents secured by Burns at the pastor's rooms, was turned over to former Judge Robert O. Harris. Harris is said to have issued a receipt for the effects of the minister which the prosecution is seeking.

Congressman Harris admits he is at present acting as advisory attorney for the defence with Judge James R. Dunbar, but strenuously denies he will appear as senior counsel or in any other capacity at the trial of Richeson.

Will Stick to Alibi.

"I cannot serve at the trial," said Congressman Harris. "I have been elected to Congress, and I fancy my constituents expect that I shall fill my seat during the months of January and February instead of taking part in any sensational murder trial."

The prosecution is preparing to meet every possible defence that might be offered.

The defence will stick to the alibi. A general denial of the government's charges and counter charges will be made, and the defence will let the prosecution proceed with what they consider a far less perfect case than is generally supposed. Those who are preparing to fight for the young clergyman's name and life assert that there are many weak and missing links in the government's chain. They predict that the prosecution has a harder task than was anticipated.

The extreme reticence and stoicism of the accused minister makes the problem all the harder, it is claimed. Richeson appears to be comfortable and optimistic in his cell at the Charles Street Jail.

It is further said that another theory which has been considered by the defense and by the Government relates to the manner in which the poison was taken. It is suggested that Avis Linnell used it in the form of a solution. The significance of this is that the defendant is said at one time have been told that a solution of cyanide of potassium would be beneficial in such a case.

If it is urged that the pastor, with implicit faith in the knowledge said to have been imparted to him some years ago, had given the poison to the girl to use in that way, he did not harbor any intent to destroy her life and could not be guilty of murder, but at most only of manslaughter if there was any criminality in his act.

Anticipating any such theory of the defence, it is said the government has had an examination of the body to find any evidence of cyanide poisoning.

Elder Richeson Goes Home.

In seat No. 3 of the Pullman car Deland, hooked on to the fast express train for Washington, "the happiest man in Boston" went away last night for his beloved Southland. He was Thomas Varland Richeson, father of the accused clergyman. Linnell.

The senior Richeson was happy for the reason that in the minds of the defence in this most sensational death mystery that New England has ever known, there seems to be nothing but acquittal and complete vindication.

Miss Lillie Richeson, sister of the accused man and daughter of the Virginia planter, went away a few hours before her father. There now remains but one of the Richeson family in Boston, so assured are they that everything has been done for the accused which could be done and that nothing remains except the trial—and freedom.

The remaining member of the Richeson family is Douglas, older brother of the accused. He is most active in his efforts for the prisoner and since his arrival in Boston has been tireless in his efforts. He has been repeatedly to the Brookline home of the Edmands family. He and the personal counsel of his father, who came from Virginia with T. V. Richeson, are scheduled to meet Mr. Dunbar and Judge Harris to-day.

Confident of Acquittal.

The departure of the elder Mr. Richeson from South Station was an unusual event in respect to the fact that every newspaper in Boston was trying to find him. He drove up to the station at 7:30 and walked down the broad plaza, turning through the gate to track fifteen without being recognized. A reporter of the AMERICAN found him a few minutes later in his seat in the Pullman car. Mr. Richeson was somewhat annoyed at having been discovered, but he consented to say a few words.

"I am the happiest man in Boston tonight," he said, "because I know now there can be but one outcome to the trial of my son. My boy is going to be acquitted. I do not say this because an elaborate defence has been planned for him. I say so because he is innocent. I know he is innocent. I do not care to tell you the substance of my talk with Clarence.

"The intuition of a parent tells me that this trial will result to the satisfaction of the defence. As sure as I am living I knew I am going back to Virginia without any stain on the name of Richeson which will not be wiped away when the courts of Massachusetts get into action."

The plans of the defence may safely be said to be complete. As was told in the AMERICAN yesterday, the defence is at alibi. In other words, the defence will stand pat and leave it to the prosecution to prove that Avis Linnell saw the accused man for some days prior to her death.

PASTOR INNOCENT OR CRAZY, SAYS REV. E .C. MILLER

NEW BEDFORD, Oct. 27.—Rev. E. C. Miller, pastor of the North Baptist Church in this city, who was intimate with Rev. Mr. Richeson of Cambridge, who is held for the murder of Avis Linnell, heard only yesterday that the engagement between Rev. Mr. Richeson and Miss Lennell was broken because the young woman preferred to become an opera singer rather than a minister's wife.

Rev. Mr. Miller said that although he did not know the circumstances which caused the breaking of the engagement between his two friends, he had supposed that the minister was responsible for it and he had read with surprise the statement that the young woman was at fault.

"But I do not want this to be taken to mean," Rev. Mr. Miller said, "that I knew that Rev. Mr. Richeson was responsible for the breaking of the engagement. I do not know any of the circumstances connected with it, although I was very close to Mr. Richeson at the time. It was only my impression that the minister had broken with the girl rather than the girl with the minister."

Mr. Miller spoke in strong denunciation of the manner in which the case against Mr. Richeson has been pre-judged. Mr. Miller was in Cambridge this week and he feels, if only from the fact those who are very close to Rev. Mr. Richeson believe him innocent, the public should hold its judgment in abeyance.

Mr. Miller is an intimate friend of Frank H. Carter, at whose home Rev. Mr. Richeson lived, and Mr. Miller's conversation with Mr. Carter led him to believe that both he and Mrs. Carter are absolutely convinced of Rev. Mr. Richeson's innocence.

Rev. Mr. Miller told of conversations that he had in Boston this week with those who had been admitted to the Charles Street Jail to see the minister. They told Mr. Miller that in all their acquaintance with Mr Richeson they had never seen him apparently more cheerful and care-free. He would talk jovially with his callers at the jail.

"Under such circumstances as these," Rev. Mr. Miller said, "there are only two alternatives—he is innocent or crazy."

Mr. Miller has personal knowledge, he says, that the dog belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Carter, with whom the minister made his home, did bother Mr. Richeson.

"Mr. and Mrs. Carter came to see me this Summer," Rev. Mr. Miller said, "and in one of the conversations that we had mention was made of the antics of their dog. They told laughingly of the dog's seeming to realize that Mr. Richeson did not like it and of the way in which it would wilfully annoy him.

"One night the dog even snapped at Mr. Richeson's foot and, if I remember right, he was so stirred up he threatened to get rid of the animal."

AVIS LINNELL'S BAPTISM AN EVENT IN BAPTIST CHURCH

No event in the Hyannis Baptist Church made a greater impression upon Rev. C. V. T. Richeson than that which occurred there January 24, 1909. He always spoke of it as one of the brightest days in his ministerial life.

He even alluded to it in a public address made before one of the Baptist conventions in the State.

Five young women were baptized, four of them sisters, the Misses Murray, with one young woman walking alone and leading them into the baptismal waters.

That young woman was only fifteen years old. Under the preaching of Mr. Richeson she had made a decided choice. Many to-day are recalling how she walked on that Sunday up to her pastor, as he stood in the waters welcoming her to a new life.

That young woman was Avis Linnell.

Never before did she look so beautiful as she did at that time, and never since then has Hyannis witnessed such an impressive sight of five young women seeking at the same time membership in the church.

13 New Members in a Year.

Richeson began his work on June 1, 1908, and that year added to his church thirteen members.

The Baptist Watchman, under date of February 9, 1909, said after this event:

"Mr. Richeson by his spirituality, personality and ability, has brought all classes close to him, both among church members and non-church goers. The church is in fine condition, both financially."

Another event in the life of Pastor Richeson was October 20, 1910, when he was officially recognized as pastor of Immanuel Baptist Church, Cambridge.

At this service, Rev. Dr. George Edwin Horr, who was to officiate at his marriage October 31, presided. The program of that service was as follows:

Invocation, William B. Cannell, B. D.; "Welcome to Cambridge," by Rev. John L. Campbell, D. D., pastor of the First Baptist Church, Cambridge; "Christian Optimism," by William M. McNair; "Church and Community," by J. E. Perry; Ph. D.; "Relation of Church to Pastor," by Walter Calley; "Retrospect and Prospect," Henry W. Rowe, Ph. D.; "Church and Young Men," by H. T. Waller; "Relation of Pastor and Church," Charles A. Fulton; "Gospel Ministry," by E. F. Merriam; "What For," by Nathan E. Wood.

Miss Linnell in Choir.

All through the service the choir sang and among them was Miss Avis Linnell.

On the reception committee were Mr. and Mrs. George W. Clapp, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Halliburton, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Greenwood, Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Cummings, Mr. and Mrs. John L. Campbell and Rev. C. V. L. Richeson.

On Sunday, June 5, 1910, he assumed the pastorate of Immanuel Baptist Church, having had charge of the prayer meeting on the preceding Friday, June 3.

On that Sunday he preached in the morning on "So Great Salvation" and in the evening on "The Faded Flower." At both of these services Miss Linnell was present.

RICHESON STORY TOLD FOR FIRST TIME IN SUNDAY AMERICAN

Avis Linnell was found dying in the bath room of the Young Women's Christian Association building in Boston two weeks ago to-morrow evening, and since that time the remarkable case has teemed with phases that have attracted the attention of New England as has no other tragedy in this section of the country.

Mrs. Edith Chase, sister of Avis Linnell, and baby. Mrs. Chase may be one of the witnesses called.

In the rapidity with which one startling fact follows another many persons are likely to lose sight of the salient—and almost incredible—characteristics of the case.

Arrested for the crime, there is locked up in the Charles Street Jail a brilliant young clergyman, the Rev. Dr. Clarence Virgil Thompson Richeson, a member of one of the leading families of Virginia. He has a host of relatives of prominence. He has friends who declart vehemently that he could not have committed murder. He is the pastor of the Immanuel Baptist Church of Cambridge, and, in spite of the fact that he has been under arrest for murder for a week, he is still the pastor of the church and the congregation stands by him.

Feel Church Is On Trial.

Thus the sacred calling of the accused man figures prominently as a factor. The religious element in New England is strong. Many clergymen look at the case almost as though the pulpit were on trial.

But amazed as the public is that a clergyman should be arrested for the alleged transgression of one of the most vital of the Ten Commandments—a commandment so short, sharp and decisive that no one has ever attempted to alter it, "Thou shalt not kill!"—the traitor-like guile used in the administration of the poison to the victim, as it is charged by the police, stunned the public when they began to appreciate it.

Here was a pastor who, it is charged, handed a girl he had baptized, whom he had heard sing sacred songs from the choir of his church, a deadly poison with a smile, representing that it was a medicine that would make her well!

A villain in a play that would do such an act would be egged from the stage.

And yet that is the grim tragedy that is being staged for a courtroom drama such as this country probably never saw before. It may be well to recall briefly, that the cardinal facts may be clear in the mind, the progress of the case from the standpoints of the prosecution and the defence.

Poison Enough to Kill Ten.

First, poison was found in the body of the dead girl in such quantities that the death of the girl was certain. It would have killed ten girls. The chemists found that it was cyanide of potassium—a poison that is only taken by a human being, or given to one, with two motives—suicide or murder. The latter was suspected.

Second, the police suspected, even themselves with incredulity, the Rev. Dr. Richeson. He had been engaged to the girl. He was engaged to another girl, Miss Violet Edmands, socially prominent and rich, and his marriage to her had been announced. It looked as though Avis Linnell had to be got out of the way.

Third, it was found that more than two weeks ago Richeson had bought a quantity of cyanide of potassium to kill a whining dog.

Fourth, Richeson refused to go to see the body of the girl after her death, although asked to do so two hours after she died.

Fifth, it is declared that Richeson mixed paste and poison at the home of the Carters in Cambridge, where he lived, two days before the girl was poisoned.

Defence of Richeson.

These are the main developments along the line of the prosecution—all circumstantial evidence. On the other hand, Richeson is preparing a defence which his friends declare to be invincible. Here are the main points:

First, Richeson was not engaged to Avis Linnell. He had been, but the engagement was broken off. He was a friend of the girl and was trying to help her out of trouble for which he was not responsible.

Miss Lucille Zeigler, close friend of Avis Linnell, who was waiting for the girl when she died at the Y. W. C. A.

Second, Richeson bought the poison for the purpose he stated—to kill a dog. The dog was killed, was buried and exhumed the day after his arrest and will be an exhibit at the trial. He also killed a cat at the same time.

Third, Richeson had not seen Avis Linnell between the time he bought poison (October 10) up to the time of her death.

Can Explain All.

Fourth, Richeson declares that he is innocent and that he can explain all the apparent incriminating features of the case.

Fifth, his friends have faith in him and will fight to the last ditch to clear him and the church.

The remarkable case was given to a special session of the Grand Jury yesterday and it looks as though it would take three days to present the facts. In the meantime for the Sunday AMERICAN is being prepared the greatest story of this Crime of the Twentieth Century that has ever been printed. There is no fiction like it. It enthralls the reader. You will get it only in the Sunday AMERICAN.

'NELLIE BLY' PRISONER IN BANKRUPTCY CASE

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—Mrs. E. C. Seaman, better known years ago as a famous newspaper and magazine writer under the name of "Nellie Bly," has been placed in the custody of a United States marshal by Judge Chatfield in the United States District Court in Brooklyn. Mrs. Seaman was the head of the Ironclad Manufacturing Co., whose affairs are under examination. She is also interested in the American Steel Barrel Co. The creditors want the books, and Mrs. Seaman developed a bad case of loss of memory when asked by the Court where they are.

BARK LOSES SAILS ON ROUGH VOYAGE

The Italian bark Salamanca reached Boston with an exhausted and nerve-racked crew. For five days and nights they worked, shovelling salt which had shifted in the hold. When the danger from the cargo had disappeared a terrific hurricane struck the vessel and for a long time the storm threatened to sink the ship. She hailed from Trapani, Sicily. The ship suffered the loss of her sails, which had been blown away, a shattered maintopmast and smashed deckfittings.

WRIGHT SOARS ON EVEN KEEL IN NEW MACHINE

By ARNOLD KRUCKMAN.

KITTY HAWK, N. C., Oct. 27.—Another remarkable demonstration of aviation's progress was exhibited by Orville Wright on Kill Devil Hill, when he automatically balanced his motorless biplane while in flight.

Mr. Wright, as well as his assistants, will not deny or affirm that the device used is the simple contrivance which he has admitted would be used, but the spectators who are familiar with the mechanics of aviation could readily realize that some entirely new element had been introduced into the manipulation of the control of the craft.

During the course of forty gliding flights a large stabilizing vane in front of the machine was repeatedly advanced. Each time the vertical fin was shoved forward a few inches it was evident that the machine maintained its poise in the air with increasing steadiness.

When the large shield, three and a half feet long and twelve inches wide was finally advanced to its full extent, six feet beyond the front edges of the lifting surfaces, the craft flew on an absolutely even keel in spite of the gusty whirlwind-like air eddies that swept from the ocean.

Evidence of Easy Control.

It is probable the demonstration does not include all features of the contrivance. Other parts may be added later, but there is no question that the Wrights are on the right track. There has never been such convincing proof of easy control as Wright and Ogilvie gave.

The operation of the machine looked so easy that it seemed entirely possible for the veriest layman to fly. It can be readily understood that an appliance which will remove the necessity for the acrobatic qualities which all aviators must now possess in order to be able to pilot a flying machine will make it possible for any ordinary man to fly. It will greatly minimize the chances for such catastrophies as almost invariably overtake professional flyers.

There are innumerable automatic balancing devices already in existence, but they are all defective in some particular.

Even the two earlier appliances perfected by the Wrights themselves are lacking in some details. In working out the present device they wish to make a system that will be practically perfect. It is their plan to remove all nervous and physical strain from the operator.

Experiments Are Spectacular.

The flights, although brief, were spectacular in the extreme. As a rule, glider flights have nothing in particular to recommend them. They usually consist of a simple slide down an air chute. But if a motorless flight, like the ones witnessed here, were exhibited at Brighton Beach it would vastly overshadow the power machine in attractiveness.

Wright and his assistants brought the machine out on the hill which these epochal experiments during the last eleven years have made world famous. It was an ideal day for the purpose. Out of the [illegible] sky the precursor of the tropical s[illegible] its way from Florida blew in fitful [illegible].

The first dozen flights were simply a repetition of the demonstrations already made familiar by Tuesday's remarkable performance. With each new flight Wright ordered the [illegible] front advanced. Even the local fisher folk, who are innocent of any knowledge of the science of flight, clearly perceived the steadying effect of the vane.

It was late in the afternoon when Alexander Ogilvie finally adjusted the vane as near to the front as it could be brought. An unsteady twenty-five-mile wind was blowing. Ogilvie and Wright launched the frail craft from a ridge almost on the crest of a giant sand dune. Orville Wright, in the seat, directed the glider into the air with marvellous steadiness.

Wearing its way from side to side like a huge bird soars, he lifted the aeroplane gradually upward until it hovered motionless over the very top of the hill at a height of seventy feet.

Here it hung suspended sharply outlined on the sky almost without a quiver for sixty seconds. Vicious currents of air struck it on the side, assailed it from above and buffeted it back and front, but it scarcely shook.

Ogilvie stood like one entranced. "That is the most marvellous exhibition of control the world has ever seen," he cried. "There is not another man or another machine that ever did that."

Leisurely the craft floated toward the earth with the same birdlike movement. Wright brought the craft down by guiding it from side to side.

Not for a second did the aeroplane deviate an inch from its even keel. Neither upward nor downward trends or right or left air gusts seemed to affect its balance. After being in the air two minutes and ten seconds, Wright brought the machine to the ground as gently as a feather.

At this time Mr. Wright is undecided whether he will break camp on Saturday or remain another week.

A LEGACY OF ILL HEALTH

Don't Let the Debility Which Follows an Attack of the Grip Make an Invalid of You.

After an acute attack of the grip the patient is frequently left in a condition that may mean a lifetime of misery if proper precautions are not taken to restore the blood and drive out the lingering poisons that cause the so-called "after-effects" of the disease.

The grip leaves behind it weakened vital powers, thin blood, impaired digestion and over-sensitive nerves—a condition that makes the system an easy prey to pneumonia, bronchitis, rheumatism, nervous prostration, and even consumption. Too much stress cannot be laid on the importance of strengthening the blood and nerves during convalescence.

"I came down with the grip," says Mrs. R. M. Williams, of Esty, Mich., "and, taking cold when I got up, was sick for two months. I was confined to bed for over three weeks and was practically helpless, having to be turned over in bed. I had no appetite, lost in flesh and had no color. The doctor said I would not be able to get around for a year at least but after being under his care for several weeks and getting no better I began using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I had taken them before as a tonic with benefit. They helped me during the first week and I took them regularly until cured. I am certain Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People saved me from being a helpless invalid for life."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are a certain blood-builder and are especially adapted for the treatment of diseases arising from a lack of blood. Their work is to make new blood. That they do this well is shown by the gradual disappearance of the symptoms and the return of color and strength. They lay the foundation for permanent health in the future.

These pills have cured anæmia, rheumatism, indigestion, neuralgia, sciatica, general debility and nervousness and are recommended wherever a blood-builder or a tonic for the nerves is needed.

A valuable booklet, "Diseases of the Blood," will be sent free upon request to any one interested.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

LODGE EVEN CUTS OUT LYNN SPEECH

The silence of Senator Lodge in the State campaign is to be complete. When it was announced in the Sunday AMERICAN some time ago that he was not to take the stump in favor of his machine candidate for the governorship, some of the leaders asked that he make just one exception. He was besought to speak for Frothingham Monday night in Odd Fellows' Hall, Lynn. But the Senator steadfastly refused. For the first time in twenty years the annual Republican rally of the State campaign in Lynn will be held without Senator Lodge. Since the earliest days of his public career Senator Lodge has been one of the principal speakers of this event.

225 PLEDGED TO END 'SLAVERY"

Secretary Holcombe of the Massachusetts Association for Labor Legislation announced at its annual meeting at the Boston Chamber of Commerce that he had circularized 542 candidates for the Legislature with the question "Will you indorse and support a measure to establish an effective system of industrial inspection and labor law enforcement in this State?" with the result that 225 pledged support.

This proposed rigid inspection, it is declared, would put an end to woman slavery in Massachusetts such as the employment of women under conditions shown by the Sunday AMERICAN to obtain at the Blake Pump Works in Cambridge and at the Worcester plant of the American Steel and Wire Company.

Secretary Holcombe said that the executive committee had voted unanimously to support some bill for better factory and industrial inspection. A sub-committee of five had asked the advisory councillors to send in their opinions on the question "Shall the association redraft the industrial inspection bill which failed to pass the Legislature last year, or shall the association support a bill for the consolidation of the various labor-law enforcing agencies in the State in order that all labor legislation may be enforced by a single body?" Answers had come from eleven members and eight were in favor of a wider body, something like an industrial commission, while two were in favor of the reintroduction of the bill of last year.

CAN BALDNESS BE CURED

Juice of South American Shrub Makes Hair Grow in Seven Days

BY ANNETTE CHAPPELOW

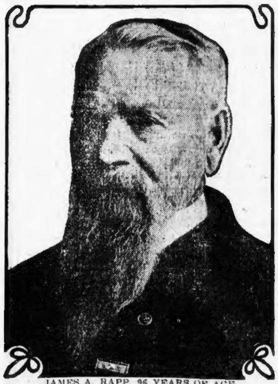
Hair and Scalp Specialist

The following recent correspondence on the question of baldness and hair troubles in general may be of interest to many readers of your paper:

"Dear Madam: I have been nearly bald for over twenty years and have tried everything to make my hair grow without success. Is there on all this wide earth a safe, certain, reliable means of making the hair grow in cases of almost total baldness?" J. W. C., Manistee, Mich.

My Reply: Yes, but you will not find it in the average advertised hair tonic. Down in South America grows a tiny plant known as the Pernambuco shrub, the juice of which when scientifically prepared constitutes the most powerful hair grower in existence. This is a comparatively recent discovery, though eminent scientists have been experimenting on the subject for years. I have seen this juice, applied nightly, start a new growth of hair over an entirely bald pate in seven days, and this short growth will quickly develop so that the patient may in from 30 to 60 days' time be the proud possessor of a thick, glossy, luxuriant growth of beautiful hair. The juice of this tropical shrub is now being prepared in strong concentrated form by pharmaceutical houses for commercial purposes under the technical name of Lavona de Composee, and all druggists keep it. This preparation must not be used in full strength, but is to be diluted with a good quality of Bay Rum, to which should be added a small quantity of Menthol Crystals and a little perfume. Here is the formula I employ in my own practice. Dissolve ½ dr. of Menthol Crystals in an 8-oz. bottle containing 6 ozs. of Bay Rum, then add 2 ozs. of Lavona de Composee and a teaspoonful of Te-Kalon perfume. Shake well and allow to stand an hour before using. Apply each night, rubbing briskly into the scalp with the finger tips or a medium stiff brush. The result will amaze you. In seven days' time go to your mirror and see for yourself the countless little hairs that have sprung up on every bald or thin spot. As this preparation will certainly force the growth of hair wherever roots exist, lady users should be careful not to apply to the face or where hair is not desired. Lavona used in connection with these other ingredients is also unequaled for driving out dandruff, stopping falling hair and itching scalp. Any good druggist can fill this prescription for you. In Boston I have often had it filled by the Riker-Jaynes Drug Co.

Veteran of Three Wars Performs Athletic Feats



JAMES A. RAPP, 96 YEARS OF AGE.

Though near the century mark, Mr. James A. Rapp, who served in the Seminole Indian War, the Mexican War and the Civil War, feels fine, rides a bicycle and takes long walks.

He attributes his wonderful vigor to Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, which has added many healthy and happy years to the ives of hundreds of thousands of men and women in all walks of life.

He writes: "I am a fine old man, strong and vigorous at the age of 96—born in New York in 1815. At the age of 85 I rode a bicycle from Marinette, Wis., to the Philadelphia National Encampment, a distance of 1,380 miles. In my 84th year I walked from Marinette, Wis., to Cincinnati, a distance of 700 miles. I am a veteran of three wars. Enlisted in 1837 in the Seminole Indian War, fought through the Everglades in Florida, dismissed in Buffalo in 1840. Enlisted in the Mexican War in 1844, serving five years; fought through the country that is now the State of Texas, and into the interior of Mexico; lay 11 months in Mexico City. In '63 I enlisted at Fond du Lac, Wis., serving in Sherman's army, marching through to the sea.

"I have used Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey for 20 years and find it to be an excellent tonic stimulant and believe my vigorous old age is due to its use. For building up the system, imparting tone and vitality to all parts of the body and thus insuring longevity, it is unequalled and brings splendid results. If people knew more about Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey we would have less drunkenness and more aged people."—James A. Rapp, 442 S. Raymond St., Marinette, Wis.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

STANDARD OF PURITY AND EXCELLENCE

is an absolutely pure distillation of clean, selected grain, carefully malted. When taken before meals it stimulates the mucous surfaces and little glands of the stomach to a healthy action, thereby improving the digestion and assimilation of the food and giving to the system its full proportion of nourishment. This action upon the digestive process is of great importance, as it brings to all the tissues and organs of the body the nutriment necessary to their sustenance, and indirectly to the whole system strength and vigor.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is the only whiskey that was taxed by the Government as a medicine during the Spanish-American War.

The genuine is sold IN SEALED BOTTLES OILY—never in bulk—by druggists, grocers and dealers or direct, $1.00 a large bottle. Doctor's advice and an illustrated medical booklet free on request. The Duffy Malt Whiskey Co., Rochester, N. Y.

NO MORE INDIGESTION, DYSPEPSIA OR SOUR, GASSY, UPSET STOMACH.

Every year regularly more than a million stomach sufferers in the United States, England and Canada take Pape's Diapepsin and realize not only immediate but lasting relief.

This harmless preparation will digest anything you eat and overcome a sour, gassy or out-of-order stomach five minutes afterwards.

If your meal don't fit comfortably, or what you eat lies like a lump of lead in your stomach, or if you have heart-burn, that is a sign of Indigestion.

Get from your Pharmacist a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and take a dose just as soon as you can. There will be no sour risings, no belching of undigested food mixed with acid, no stomach gas or heart-burn—fullness or heavy feeling in the stomach, Nausea, Debilitating Headaches, Dizziness or Intestinal griping. This will all go, and, besides, there will be no sour food left over in the stomach to poison your breath with nauseous odors.

Pape's Diapepsin is a certain cure for out-of-order stomachs, because it takes hold of your food and digests it just the same as if your stomach wasn't there.

Relief in five minutes from all stomach misery is waiting for you at any drug store.

These large 50-cent cases contain more than sufficient to thoroughly cure almost any case of Dyspepsia, Indigestion or any other stomach disorder.

FROTHINGHAM ATTACKS FOSS

HYANNIS, Oct. 27.—Lieutenant-Governor Frothingham, Lodge Machine candidate for Governor, at his rally here, claimed the investigations of State affairs instituted by Governor Foss had failed to show any wrong doing. He said, in part:

"Nobody objects to, in fact everyone should assist in investigations for the betterment of the departments and institutions of the State. When such investigations have been made, however, at great cost by agents of the Governor, and have failed to show any wrongdoing, the voters who take pride in their State have a right to resent the aspersions cast on her integrity by the chief executive.

"When the Governor goes further and again this year undertakes to fool the people by false statements, the voters have a right to hold him strictly to account. When the record of his opponent is cited he should see that it is stated correctly, and when his own record is reviewed he should not lay claim to anything not supported by the facts."

MISSION ANNIVERSARY.

MAXWELLS WIN GLIDDEN TOUR

By DUNCAN CURRY.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Oct. 27.—The Glidden tourists completed their long, hard journey from New York in a driving rain storm after an eighty-seven-mile day's run through Florida's worst and deepest sand roads. The sand often buried all four wheels of the cars. Thirty miles north of Jacksonville, the Chalmers press car had to help half a dozen cars out of the road into the turnpike before they could get going again.

As a result of the eleven days' hard grind over bad roads, the little Tarrytown-Maxwell team won a fine victory, not a single point being scored against the three cars that represented New York State. Four out of the fourteen surviving clear-score cars were Maxwell, a remarkable record for cars that cost only $1,280.

As a result of the ay's hard going two of the clean-score cars were penalized, including the American No. 5, seven points, and the Mitchell No. 73, eighteen points.

Arthur See Lucky.

The Stevens-Duryea trio of the Atlanta No. 2 team was second, one of their cars being penalised 10 points. The Jacksonville-Cadillac team was third, with 23 points penalization, while the Ford team, though only one of its three cars was penalized, was fourth, with 125 points; the Live Oak-Cadillac was fifth, with 279 points; the Nashville-Marathon sixth, with 509 points, and the Detroit-Flanders seventh, with 1,028 points. Oout of the sixty-four cars which left New York only fourteen came through with clean scores, as follows:

Nos. 1, 2, 3 and 4, Maxwell; Nos. 32, 40 and 48, Cadillac; Nos. 11 and 39, Stevens-Duryea, Nos. 44 and 45, Ford; No. 19, Mitchell; No. 49, Columbia and No. 54 Flanders. These cars are all tied for the Anderson trophy, which was drawn for by lot. Arthur See drew the lucky number for the United States Motor Cup. See drove Governor Hoke Smith's Maxwell. All of the cars will be given certificates.

The cash prizes in the various divisions were as follows: Class 1, touring cars, $800 and under, won by W. H. Soules, Flanders, No. 54; runabouts, John Orr, No. 44, Ford, and T. M. Haygood, No. 45, Ford, divide first money. All of these cars had clean scores.

Division 2, runabouts costing $801 to $1,200, won by A. C. Sullivan, No. 26, Mitchell, 88 points; division No. 3, $1201 to $1,400, touring cars, tie between Nos. 1, 2, 3 and 4, Maxwell, driven by Harry Walls, E. G. Gager Thomas Costello and Arthur See all clean scores. Division No. 4 $1,001 to $2,000, touring cars, won by A. W. Walker's, No. 40 Cadillac with clean scores.

How Points Stand.

Division No. 5, $2,001 to $3,000, won by L. C. Brown's No. 19, Mitchell, being the only car with ac lean score; division No. 6, $3,001 to $4,000, won by C. H. Johnson's No. 11, Stevens Duryea; runabouts, D. K. Brinson's No. 39, Stevens-Duryea and Paul Keller's No. 49, Columbia, divide wit clean scores; division No. 7, $4,001 and over, touring cars, won by H. J. Howland's No. 52, six cylinder Packard, 14 points; runabouts, Inman Gray's No. 5, American, 7 points.

BOY KILLED BY CAR; MOTORMAN ARRESTED

Samuel Maguire of No. 50 Etna street, Brighton, motorman for the Boston Elevated railway, is under arrest, charged with manslaughter in being responsible for the death of Hyman Aronson, aged seven, of No. 29 Jay street, Cambridge, who was killed by a car in charge of Maguire on Western avenue, near Howard street, a short distance from his home. He had been out with his mother and sister, and was attempting to cross the street when the car came along. The child, according to witnesses, ran in front of the car and before Maguire could stop was beneath the fender and cross-bars of the wheels. The boy died before reaching the hospital.

Maguire was bailed out by Fred H. Stearns, superintendent of Division 9, Brighton.

SHEPARD NORWELL EMPLOYES DANCE

Five hundred members and friends attended the regular annual dance and supper of the Shepard Norwell Mutual Aid Association at Howe Hall, Huntington avenue. The hall was elaborately decorated with bunting and potted plants. The officers of the dance were: William Wallis, floor director, and William M. Lichtenstein, assistant floor director. The following served as aids: Miss Lewis, Miss Sheehan, Miss Sherman, Miss Stamford, William Howes, Herbert Price, William Clothier and Benjamin Dalton.

Men's Clothing Dept. Sacrificed

At Less Than 40c on the Dollar

Never before in the long life of our business did we mark the merchandise in any department at such ridiculously low prices. We have had a great many sales but no one ever equalled the value giving of this sacrifice of our men's clothing department. The prices have been cut so low that they may give the impression that the stock is inferior or old style, but we assure the public that every garment is this Fall and Winter's latest style and fabric. We pledge our honor as a business house that this is absolutely so. We wish to dispose of our entire Men's Department at once and expect to take a big loss to do it. All last week and this week men came here in droves and many bought three suits and three overcoats for the price of one.

Former Governor John D. Long was seventy-two years old to-day. He remained at his home in Hingham, where he received a large number of letters and telegrams congratulating him. He took a long walk.

SCISSORS CUT OLD FRIENDSHIP

BROCKTON, Oct. 27. — After all, Mrs. Avak Moorachian had to wash the supper dishes without the assistance of Mr. Moorachian. Even the most model of husbands cannot do much in the dish-washing line immediately after his supposedly best friend is so carried away with indignation at seeing his former chum engaged in such a menial occupation that he writes his disapproval on the model husband's face, using a pair of scissors to write with. Whereupon John Chapoorian, the friend, was taken to the police station, and Mrs. Moorachian washed up the dishes herself in the intervals of sympathizing with her spouse.

Avak and John were chummy before the former's marriage. When John concluded that Avak was getting too much in the habit of staying at home nights he called at the Moorachian home, No. 94 Franklin street, and invited Avak to go out with him and "do the town." Mr. Moorachian was in the kitchen assisting his wife to wash the dishes. He received John's invitation coldly. Whereupon, Mr. Chapoorian made several unkind remarks about henpecked husbands and intimated that it looked as if Mrs. Moorachian was the real head of the house.

Mr. Moorachian, with some heat, denied the allegation. To point his remarks Mr. Chapoorian picked up the scissors and in a workmanlike manner cut a few seams in the Moorachian visage. Mr. Chapoorian was arraigned in court to-day on the charge of assault with a dangerous weapon.

FERRYBOAT CAPTAIN NICHILAS RYAN DIES

Nicholas J. Ryan, aged seventy-two, a resident of East Boston for more than sixty years and one of the best-known captains on the East Boston ferries, is dead at the Grace Hospital after a brief illness. Although he had not been in the bets of health for several months, Mr. Ryan had been at his customary place at the captain's wheel on the ferryboats until a few days ago. Stomach trouble was the cause of death.

WHAT IS THAT FOLEY QUESTION?

The question Miss Margaret L. Foley, the Suffragist leader, is going to ask Lieutenant-Governor Frothingham, a few days before the election, November 7, is worrying the Republican campaign orators. Thousands of questions have been asked them during the campaign, but in their experience in campaigning no one has matched the wits of Miss Foley. Can you?

Now is the time to find out if you can ask the same puzzling question that Miss Foley is going to put up to the Republican candidate for Governor.

Hundreds of letters are received at the AMERICAN office daily containing guesses as to what the question will be. You have an equal chance with every one else. All you have to do is to write out what you think is the question Miss Foley is to ask and mail it to the "Suffragist Editor," Boston AMERICAN.

The AMERICAN will pay $5 to the person sending the nearest guess to Miss Foley's secret question. Five others, who are next nearest, will receive $1 each. Both men and women may reply. There is but a short time in which to win these cash prizes.

The question is not "Do you believe in votes for women?"

SEND YOUR ANSWER TO-DAY.

Here are some of the answers already received:

"Do women get justice by man-made laws?"—George Rothnle, No. 445 Shawmut avenue, Boston.

"Mr. Frothingham, do you expect to be elected on your past record, or have you anything new to offer? If so, what is it?"—G. R. Berylson, No. 25 High street, Manchester, N. H.

"Is taxation representative in the laws of Massachusetts if the property is owned by women?"—Professor A. B. Magoun, Brant Rock, Mass.

"Do you believe that women should be on an equality with men?"—Captain M. Douglass, Gloucester, Mass.

CAMBRIDGE TO FAVOR "TECH"

Though remonstrance, on account of tax exemption, is expected on the question of abolishing streets already laid out in Cambridge in the tract of land desired by Massachusetts Institute of Technology for a new site, Mayor Barry believes that the preliminary action on the question will be favorable, so far as the city is concerned.

The matter is now in the hands of the Cambridge City Committee on Highways. The committee is scheduled to report at next Tuesday night's meeting of the Council. If the report is favorable, a hearing could be granted sometime in November, allowing for the usual three weeks' advertising notices.

Jack London on Literary Divorces

By JACK LONDON.

GLEN ELLEN, Cal., Oct. 27.—I have not noticed that literary folks are divorced any more frequently or any less frequently than other folks who enjoy incomes sufficient to pay for divorces.

Marital unhappiness is common to all economic classes. Divorce is often too expensive for the poorer classes, so they grin and bear and continue to live on in mutual hell because of the simple economic reason that one blanket costs less than two blankets. The full connotation of the foregoing state is obvious.

John Smith and Timothy Jones, merchants, in Oskosh and Petaluma, can afford divorces and get them just as frequently as do literary men and women and multi-millionaire men and women. The difference is mostly of news exploitation. The public doesn't care a red cent about the marital troubles and divorces of the John Smiths and Timothy Joneses, so the newspapers pass them by. But the literary folks and the multi-millionaire folks get advertised. That is all there is to it. You know it, I know it, we know it.

Domestic life with literary folks is just about as easy and as difficult as it is for all other kinds of folks. The ideal mate for a writer should correspond to such writer just about as precisely as all other ideal mates correspond to all other working men, shop keepers and millionaires. Writers should not marry a minute earlier nor a second later than any other class of marriageable human should marry.

FINAL HONORS TO IDA LEWIS

NEWPORT, Oct. 27.—The Nation, the Commonwealth of Rhode Island and the City of Newport united in paying tribute to Ida Lewis, the "Grace Darling of America," at her funeral to-day.

Mayor Patrick J. Boyle and other representatives of the Newport government, officials of the State, and a large delegation from Fort Adams attended the services at the Thames Street Methodist Episcopal Church.

Handsome floral tributes were assembled from people in all walks of life, some of them from those whose lives had been saved by the famous keeper of the Lime Rock Lighthouse. One of the most imposing was that from Captain Chauncy Kenyon and crew at the rescue station at Price's Neck. It was a massive pillow of Easter lilies and white roses.

The honorary bearers were Charles Schoenneman, John M. Brierly, James McLeish, ex-Police Captain F. D. Garnett, Harbor Master Thomas Shea and A. W. Aldred.

TURKISH SHIP IS SUNK IN BATTLE

LONDON, Oct. 27.—A cable dispatch from Turin, Italy, to-day states that the Italian battleship Napoli was attacked by two Turkish battleships near the Dardanelles, and that a furious battle resulted, in which one of the Turkish sips was sunk and the other severely damaged. The extent of the damage to the Napoli was not stated.

MALTA, Oct. 27.—Seven hundred Italians were killed in the fighting around Tripoli, according to steamship passengers who have just arrived here. During a reconnoissance an Italian outpost encountered a Turkish outpost, which retreated. The Italians followed and found themselves suddenly attacked on all sides. Three companies of light artillery were annihilated.

FRENCH WARSHIP IN FIRE PERIL

TOULON, France, Oct. 27.—An outbreak of fire on board the French battleship Justice, a sister ship of the Liberte, which was blown up September 25, is believed to have been due to a short circuit. A shower of sparks fell in dangerous proximity to the magazines and the commander ordered the forward magazines flooded. The fire was gotten under control and no great damage resulted.

Congressman-Councilman James M. C ley aided in putting several of his polit ies in a box—a jury box to be exact.

Under the designation of the Man Councilman Curley officiated at the dra ing of jurors for the civil sessions of t Suffolk County Superior Court. The fi name he drew out from the box was th of James Donovan—"Smiling Jim," an Curley and anti-Fitzgerald, former cha man of the Democratic City Committee a superintendent of streets under Ma Collins.

"Can you beat that?" said Curley.

Next came the name of former Congre man William S. McNary, also off the Fi gerald-Curley reservation, followed by th of First Assistant Assessor William I Cuddy of Ward 8, a member of the He dricks Club.

"Can you beat that?" again exclaim Mr. Curley. "If Joe O'Connell's nam were here it would complete the jury."

M'ALEER AUTO RUNS DOWN MAN

Miss Mary E. McAleer and her sister Anna, heiresses of the late Patrick McAleer, a rich contractor, who live at No. 1,847 Beacon street, Brookline, are at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel in New York, recovering from the nervous stroke they sustained when their touring car struck and knocked down Jose Garcia at the corner of Eighth avenue and One Hundred and thirty-fourth street in that city.

Garcia's condition is reported as critical to-day.

The Misses McAleer and their chauffeur left for New York early yesterday. The first known of the accident was when the car, containing besides the chauffeur, a policeman, a reclining man and two pale-faced and half-hysterical women, whizzed up to the Harlem Hospital.

"For God's sake, get a doctor," screamed one of the women, both of whom were handsomely dressed. "This man is dying. We ran over him in the car. It was an accident—a terrible accident."

Absolved from Blame.

A cursory examination disclosed that Garcia was suffering from a broken collarbone, internal injuries and contusions. The doctors held out little hope for his recovery. When the news was conveyed to the young women they half swooned.

"My name is Mary E. McAleer," said the eldest. "This lady is my sister. We live at No. 1,847 Beacon street, Boston, and are at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel."

Figured in Will Contest.

The women left for their hotel as soon as they were informed by the police that they were not to blame and no charge would be made against them. Both expressed a desire to aid Garcia al they could. The last rites of the church were administered to the injured man by the Rev. Father Walsh.

The Misses McAleer figured in hte famous contest over the will of theirfather several years ago. Miss Mary McAleer and her brother John, who were co-executors of the will, disagreed and the four sisters contested the probate of the instrument. Brother and sister were removed as executors by Judge Grant and his decision was affirmed by the Supreme Court. The estate was valued at almost $1,000,000.

FANEUIL HALL NOON RALLY OF DEMOCRATS

AGED MAN SUICIDE; FEARED POORHOUSE

The body of Nils Fisher Thorkston, a blacksmith, was found dangling from a gas jet in the bathroom of a vacant tenement at No. 67 Shawmut avenue. It is believed he committed suicide because of inability to obtain work and fear of the poorhouse. The old man, who lived in another apartment with his wife, left a note in his room last Wednesday to the effect that he was despondent and intended to end his life.

SULLIVAN NOT TO QUIT FINANCE BODY

When asked if he was to resign as chairman of the Finance Commission, John A. Sullivan said: "I have no immediate intention of resigning. While it is quite true that the work of that office requires more of my time than I ever expected it would and my private practice has to a certain extent been neglected, I have no intention of resigning." When asked if he had given the question of resigning any thought he replied: "It has not entered my head and I have no thoughts of resigning now or in the future."

Uneeda Biscuit never disappoint!

You have never heard anyone say—"The Uneeda Biscuit in that last package were not as good as usual."

You have never said it yourself.

It is one thing to make soda crackers that are occasionally good.

It is quite another thing to make them so that they are not only always better than all other soda crackers, but always of unvarying goodness.

The name "Uneeda"—stamped on every one of them—means that if a million packages of Uneeda Biscuit were placed before you, you could choose any one of them, confident that every soda cracker in that package would be as good as the best Uneeda Biscuit ever baked.

HOW GIRL WORKED HER WAY THROUGH COLLEGE

By SYBIL WARNE.

Girls, do you want to work your way through college?

Are you willing to scrub, do housework, wait on tables, wash dishes daily, turn into a clerk a part of the time, mend clothes, etc?

These are some of the ways that Miss Lorina M. Dodge of the senior class of Boston University has been working for seven years to get an education. She has done everything in order to pay for her education, thinking nothing of the drudgery of work as long as she could pay her expenses.

Her experience has had its dark and bright sides. Often in her little attic room she has had long and serious thoughts about meeting her expenses and laid awake at night thinking about them.

Miss Dodge has a wealth of energy and skill. She is very pretty and talks nonchalantly about her struggles in getting an education.

It has been sheer will power and grit that has aided her through many a trying ordeal.

Receives Degree in June.

She will get her degree of B. A. next June and will then take up teaching English, of which she has made a specialty during her course of studies.

She can tell you off hand about the different philosophies that have contributed to the thought of the world, and she is pronounced one of the best English students in the university. Everything she does is done in a matter of fact way and it is this which has carried her through the trials of working for her education.

"Every girl, who wants to go through college and work her way can do so," she maintains. "For seven years to get my education I have almost done everything to get along. I have done housework. I have washed. I have scrubbed floors. I have mended clothing. I have waited on the tables at restaurants. I have been a clerk, and many other things I have gone through to pay for my education.

"After my parents told me that I could not get any more education than was given me in the grammar school I went to work. I worked in many places, and then after a while I was steadily employed at the Waltham Watch Factory.

"All the time that I was working I could not help thinking that I should have more education. Reading and studying have been always pleasures to me. So I made up my mind that I would get a degree from some college. I went first of all, through the advice of a friend, to Kent's Hill school, in Maine, where I spent three years preparing for college. I worked at everything I could get while I was at this school. I made more money in the Summer time by waiting on tables.

Two Meals a Day.

"I have seen the time when I was pretty low in funds. I have lived on almost nothing, some days on 15 cents, in order to meet my expenses.

"The hardest time for a girl trying to earn her way through college is at the first. You know so few people, and they do not know how you are struggling to get along, and above all you do not want to tell people what you are doing.

"But during my college course, and I am a senior this year, I have slept in an attic room and got two meals a day there until lately.

"I always get my breakfast in my room. Then I work for two hours at the information desk here in the college. When lunch time comes I am in the dining room waiting upon the tables and then at night I work at a restaurant doing the same thing.

"Through the work at the information desk, which is entirely clerical in its nature, I am paying in part for my tuition. Then the cost of my room rent and other things come out of what I can pick up in the lunch room and in the restaurant where I now get my suppers.

Worth the Struggle.

"I am near the end of my journey now. I have just this year to get through to obtain my degree, and then I shall have my B. A."

"Do you think that it is worth all that you have gone through to get an education?" she was asked.

"Well, it is in every way," she replied. "I have gone through a good deal to get my education and to become a teacher. It has been hard cooking your own meals all the time and trying to make one dollar do the work of ten dollars, and then some days knowing that you are running short and feeling that you have got to retrench. But it's all for an education and when I get through I shall feel that I have earned it every way."

"To what have you assigned your success?"

"You must have plenty of will power, and don't get discouraged if something remains dark for a time. You will get out of it," she replied.

"Any girl can go through college if she has a good, strong will and determination to get through. While I have had to do everything I do not regret it. It is harder trying to keep up your outward appearance than anything else. Dress costs so much and a young girl has to do something to keep herself looking decent.

"I have patched and patched, till I am tired. I have made things go so far. Often I got so tired looking at my own scant wardrobe; and then I would say, 'Well, this is what you've got to put up with when you try to get an education.' Living close to the mark and some days not getting the full meal and all that sort of thing will be your experience.

"Some nights after waiting on tables and doing my work in the office of the university, I have felt so sleepy, but then I must prepare my lessons and I would wash my eyes with cold water to keep awake. I have been so dead tired at times. When Sunday came along it was a real blessing in more ways than one.

"Yes, it's hard meeting your room rent, paying for your meals that you get, and often going without a square meal yourself and to appear happy. Often I have wished that somebody would give me a good dinner. I always get enough, but you know you get so tired of your own cooking, and just to taste someone else's cooking would be a treat. You can work your way through college but you have got to be healthy and to be willing to do anything.

"As I say, I have scrubbed, I have washed, I have waited on tables until I am tired of it. I have helped in the mending, I have done household work, and have done other things that some girls would think that they could not do, but I did them to pay my way and I was glad to do them. It is a good thing to be independent and when you get an education to feel that you have struggled to get it and in getting it this way you appreciate it more.

"I hope to teach next year. I am making a special study of English philosophy, theism and empiricism. These days I get so tired after working and when I try to study these philosophical subjects at night I get so sleepy. That is where you have to fight to keep awake. I have done most of my studying in my attic room, and if it could speak it would tell of all that I have gone through with my simple meals. But I am not plaining over anything. I am glad of it. I wish to tell other girls they will be happy when they get out and fight the world as I am doing for an education."

URGES LABOR PEACE IN LYNN

Lasting peace between employers and employed in Lynn's great shoe industry was strongly urged by Alfred W. Donovan, president of the Boston Boot and Shoe Club in his address at the annual banquet of Valladolid Council Knights of Columbus.

"Lynn," said Mr. Donovan, "is sorely in need of something else than oratory and sidewalk conversations. I want this city to remain forever as the first city in the production of shoes and leather. The men and women of the world have got to wear shoes and they might just as well be made in Lynn as in St. Louis or in the wilds of Maine.

"There is just one way for Lynn to get ahead and to maintain its present standard and that is to everlastingly dovetail the interests of the manufacturers and the workingmen. Lynn has everything but a leader in whom everyone will have faith. There is a cloud hanging over the city and there is no need of it.

"There are in this hall a dozen men, whom I know are capable of being the leaders in this movement to bring about perpetual peace.

"Not alone in Lynn, but throughout Massachusetts, the shoe industry needs close watching and no city has more responsibility for the protection of this industry than Lynn. It seems to be a fad throughout eastern Massachusetts of late to attempt to smite and tear down any successful man or industry and it is this condition that we must change."

"SMALLPOX" SCARE AT THE NAVY YARD

A smallpox scare at the Charlestown navy yard was abated when Dr. Brough of the Board of Health found that the patients were suffering from chicken-pox. Two members of the marine guard at the naval prison and one of the prisoners, a typewriter in the prison office, were stricken with the disease. Dr. Wieber, the yard physician, at first glance believed the men had smallpox. Every precaution to prevent an epidemic was taken.

COULD NOT SLEEP WITH ITCHING RASH

All Over Baby's Body, Head and Face. Scratching Made Sores. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment and Have Had No Further Trouble.

"On July 27, 1909, we left Boston for a trip to England and Ireland, taking baby with us. After being in Ireland a few days a nasty rash came out all over his body. We took him to a doctor who said it was chicken pox, and gave us medicine for him. The trouble started in the form of a rash and was all over baby's body, head and face, at different times. It irritated, and he would scratch it with all his might. The consequence was it developed into sores, and we were afraid it would leave nasty scars on his face.

"When we reached England we took baby to another doctor, who said his condition was due to change of food and climate, and gave more medicine. The rash got no better, and it used to itch and burn at night so bad that the child could not sleep. He was completely covered with it at different times. It was at this time that my mother advised us to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment. After using Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment for about nine months the places disappeared. There are not any scars, or other kind of disfigurement, and baby is completely cured by the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. We have had no further trouble with baby's skin. Nothing stopped the itching, and allowed baby to sleep but Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment." (Signed) Mrs. Margaret Gunn, 29 Burrell St., Roxbury, Boston, Mass., March 12, 1911.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold throughout the world. Send to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Dept. 14A, Boston, for free sample of each with 32-p. book on the skin.

At Regular Cash Prices the Following Selection of HIGH GRADE CLOTHING

Aristocratic ready-tailored clothes that have been extensively advertised by the makers at the expense of hundreds of thousands of dollars in the high-class magazines of the country. These clothes are made by the most reputable concerns in America, who stand behind every garment. We would not handle anything in the men's clothing line that did not have a well-established national reputation. We respectfully submit the following brands of high-class men's clothing for your inspection:

High Art Clothes (Strouse & Bros., Baltimore, Md.) Conceded to be one of the finest brands of ready-to-wear clothes in America.

Fashion Clothes (Made in Rochester, N. Y.) Unquestionably the most fashionable clothes built for young men.

Frankel System Clothes (Frankel Bros., New York City.) Recommended to be the very best medium-priced line in the market today, including the famous Frankel Fifteen Dollar Suit.

Charac'er Clothes (New York City) Strictly Union Made under best sanitary conditions.

J. P. Morgan Signs Statement Promising Great Legal Battle.

Carnegie, Rockefeller, Gary and Schwab Among Those Named in Bill

sion, mapping out the steps to be taken to defend the life of the Steel Trust.

Boston Men Not Named.

Robert Winsor of Kidder, Peabody Company and George M. Lane of Lee, Higginson & Co., the two Boston men in the Steel directorate, are not named in the bill of complaint.

Among the individual concerns is the American Steel and Wire Company of New Jersey, in whose mammoth plant at Worcester the Sunday AMERICAN recently exposed the shocking conditions under which women and girls work in the spooling and other departments. The other companies of the trust named in the bill are

The United States Steel Corporation, Carnegie Steel Company, Carnegie Company of New Jersey, Federal Steel Company, National Steel Company, National Tube Company, Shelby Tube Company, Tin Plate Company, American Sheet and Tin Plate Company, American Sheet Steel Company, American Steel Hoop Company, American Bridge Company, Lake Superior Consolidated Iron Mines, all of which were organized under the New Jersey laws, and the H. C. Frick Coke Company, Tennessee Coal & Iron & Railroad Company and the Great Western Mining Company are named as corporate defendants.

$1,465,459,819 Capital.

The total capitalization of the companies represented in the Steel Trust is given as $1,465,459,819. It is the greatest aggregation of capital in one enterprise in the world, and the action brought by the government is equally the most sweeping ever brought under the Sherman law. The dissolution of all the subsidiary companies is asked for as well as that of the parent Trust itself.

Reports that the action if successful would affect the big trust funds established by Andrew Carnegie for educational and benevolent purposes gave added interest to

> ## Carnegie Gets $16,000,000
> For his interest in the Carnegie Steel Company, Andrew Carnegie took in payment 5 per cent. first mortgage bonds of the United States Steel Corporation, which have netted him an annual income of $[illegible]000.
> The gross earnings of the Steel Corporation last year were over $700,000,000, and the net earnings more than $141,000,000. It produced in that year about 25,000,000 tons of iron ore, nearly 12,000,000 tons of pig iron, and more than 10,700,000 tons of finished steel.—From report of Director of Corporations Knox.

lay to the proceedings against the Steel Trust. These funds derive their income from Steel Corporation 6 per cent. first mortgage bonds aggregating $30,000,000, and should the government win it will be necessary for Mr. Carnegie to reestablish the funds with other securities.

The huge Steel Trust was practically organized at an all-night secret meeting at the home of J. Pierpont Morgan in New York late in 1900 and was formally organized in April of the following year. It was the suggestion of Charles M. Schwab, and Andrew Carnegie was to blame for it, according to one of the "insiders," because of the policy of the Carnegie Steel Company in breaking loose from trade agreements. The acquiescence of the Carnegie Company in the Trust plan made smooth sailing for the combine and the raid on the Tennessee Coal & Iron Company clinched the control of the iron and steel industry in this country.

The petition is an equity proceeding praying for injunctions to stop continuance of the alleged monopoly and for such other relief as the court may grant.

Roosevelt Misled, Says Bill.

The Steel Corporation's acquisition of the Tennessee Coal & Iron Company during the panic of 1908 is declared illegal. The petition declares that E. H. Gary and Henry C. Frick misled former President Roosevelt when they told him "that but little benefit will come to the Steel Corporation from the purchase."

"The President," it continues, "was not made fully acquainted with the state of affairs in New York relevant to the transactions as they existed. If he had been fully advised he would have known that a desire to stop the panic was not the sole moving cause, but that there was also a desire and purpose to acquire the control of a company that had recently assumed a position of potential competition of great significance.

"It is certain that the corporation availed itself of the embarrassment of Moore & Schley (New York brokers who had large holdings of Tennessee stock) at a most critical period and the hammering of the Tennessee stock and the threatening of a general financial calamity to acquire the control of a competitor, taking on a formidable aspect.

"The corporation thus greatly strengthened its control of the country's iron ore supply, its predominating position in the South's iron and steel trade, eliminated a competitor and unlawfully acquired a power which is a menace to the welfare of the country and should be destroyed."

Gary Dinners and Honor.

The Gary dinners are referred to, though not by name, as meetings which accomplished more than written pools or agreements, which were frequently broken.

"It was understood and agreed," says the bill, "that they (the steel manufacturers represented at the meetings) were bound to protect one another; that to carry out this purpose their honor was at stake, and that the obligation binding upon them was even dearer than life itself, and that no one of them should act or fail to act except with a distinct and clear understanding that his honor was involved, and that this was more binding on him than any written or verbal contract. When bidden by the chief executive of the corporation, they came at any time, from any distance, ready, willing, and anxious to turn over to him and his friends all that was in their minds and in their hearts concerning their own business.

"Interlocking directorates through which those in power in the Steel corporation hold positions of influence on the directorates of other powerful corporations are referred to as a method [illegible], more euphonious, but none the less effective than pools."

Other Corporations Mentioned.

"Through its directors thus distributed," says the government's petition, "the corporation is in direct touch with all of the large railroad and steamship companies of the United States, such powerful concerns as the Standard Oil Company, the Pullman Company, the International Harvester Company and with the overwhelming majority in money and power of the banks and trust companies of the United States. The possibilities of the power and control that may thus be exerted over trade and commerce is inestimable.

"The power and control that have been exerted by the corporation largely through the grasp of its tentacles, thus thrown out upon the consumer, competitors and capital is incompatible with the healthy commercial life of the nation."

The government reviews in great detail the conditions in the steel trade before the consolidation of 1898-1900 and the formation of the Federal Steel Company, the Carnegie Company of New Jersey, the American Steel and Wire Company, the National Tube Company, the National Steel Company and the American Tin Plate Company, the American Steel Hoop Company, the American Sheet Steel Company and other corporations prior to the formation of the United States Steel Corporation itself in 1901.

Describing the corporation's acquisition of the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company, the petition relates:

"In 1907 the corporation [illegible] control and almost the entire [illegible] the Tennessee Coal, Iron [illegible] Company. The properties [illegible] pany were located mainly [illegible] Tennessee.

BROWN LINE IS NOT YET PICKED

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 27.—The Brown football squad was put through its last hard practice before the Harvard game yesterday at Andrews Field, and the finishing touches were put on the new play which the eleven will use in the contest with the Crimson.

The line positions are still uncertain, though it is thought that the coaches have settled upon the seven men for the Harvard game. If they have they are keeping their own counsel, and no one will know until a few minutes before the game, when the names are read.

Gelb was back at his old place at right tackle after it seemed all settled that Bartlett was again to be shifted back to his regular position at left guard, with Mitchell covering the pivot place.

Tenney and Bean, the right halfbacks, were both out to-day, but neither got into the work much, as their injuries are still holding them back. Bean is in the better shape of the two, and it seems probable that he will start the game in that position, with Tenney going in later if it is necessary.

Marble, left halfback, has not reported for practice for the last two days and Crowther seems slated for that position now. Jones will be at his regular place at full, with Snell as a sub, while Sprackling will officiate at quarter.

Adams and Ashbaugh, left and right end respectively, are both troubled with sore fingers, which may impair their work in handling the forward pass. Adams has blood poison in his finger, while Ashbaugh has had two of the members knocked out of joint and cut.

That's the Proper Way to Pronounce Hyomei, the Famous Catarrh Remedy Made from Australian Eucalyptus and Other Antiseptics. Just Breathe It.

If you will use a common sense method, getting rid of catarrh is easy.

Germs cause catarrh, you know that, and you also know that in order to end catarrh you must destroy the germs.

In every HYOMEI outfit which is sold by druggists everywhere there is a little bottle of antiseptic liquid that will kill catarrh germs.

Pour a few drops of his liquid into the little hard rubber inhaler which comes with the outfit and breathe this now antiseptic vaporized air over the membrane of the nose and throat infested with catarrh germs.

It's pleasant, soothing and healing is this vaporized air, and it is really the only remedy known that can reach and kill catarrh germs. Complete outfit $1.00. It is guaranteed not to contain cocaine, opium or other habit forming drugs. Booth's Hyomei Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Value-Giving That Has No Equal

Actual photograph of Mr. Johnson, of our sales force wearing a $20 Kuppenheimer "Kossack" Overcoat

WHEN you buy your clothes from this Live Store you are dealing with the greatest value-giving institution of its kind in New England—a store whose bigger stock, better selections, greater values and all-around supremacy in the field of men's wear stands unchallenged.

This store is distinctive for the style and quality of its merchandise—distinctive in reliability, in courtesy, in goodwill, and in its purpose that each sale shall give entire satisfaction.

It is not wholly in a boastful spirit that we call attention to the wonderful success which has attended our first eight months in Boston—to the tremendous stocks we carry—to the great values we give. These are facts which you should know as indicating which store can offer you the best assortments, which store can give you most for your money, and which store has won the confidence of the people.

If you want the best in quality, the most in service, and the utmost in satisfaction for every dollar you spend—whether few or many—you must come to Kennedy's.

Wonderful Stock of Overcoats

Medium length, single breasted, conservative models—the very new and striking Raglan style—and great, big, long, double-breasted Service Coats for motoring, for the football game and for all outdooring. Many have the beautiful plaid backs, with rich, satin yokes. Many have belts—some half way round, some all the way round. Nearly all have the two-way, convertible collar.

Kuppenheimer Coats

at Kennedy prices are values that no man can fail to recognize. The Kuppenheimer label on a suit or overcoat is a guarantee of the finest all-wool, cold water shrunk fabrics, most authentic style and superior workmanship. Nothing better could be desired, nor could it be produced if it were. At our prices these are extreme values.

$18 $20 up to $35

For Little Money

Why should you be asked to pay $10 to $15 more for an overcoat just because it has a belt on it which cost possibly 50 cents to make? We don't know. Perhaps the stores that are asking the long prices can tell you. You never have to pay extra for new style kinks here. They cost us no more. Why should they you? Come see the splendid coats we sell at

$12.50 $15 $18

Men's Fall and Winter Suits

FEAR OF JAIL KILLED WALSH, GANG LEADER

Fright [illegible] Martin J. Walsh, noted as a confidence man and as the "brains" of the gang that robbed George W. Coleman, former clerk of the National City Bank of Cambridge, of the $300,000 he stole from the bank.

Walsh is in a grave in the little cemetery at Peabody. Coleman is in the jail at Greenfield as a Federal prisoner. William J. "Big Bill" Kelliher, another of the gang, is in a cell at the Charles street jail, under sentence of eighteen years, but fighting for his freedom.

Officially Martin Walsh is reported to have died from an attack of acute indigestion. In reality he died from fright that brought on a heart attack, say members of the underworld who were intimate with Walsh and knew of his connection with the Coleman case.

Walsh, in Fear, Fled.

Walsh was a victim of fear. When Coleman was arrested and talked, Walsh fled to Egypt [illegible] places [illegible] information [illegible] then he returned to New York [illegible] assumed name [illegible] private detectives [illegible] Walsh [illegible] Broadway [illegible] kept him from [illegible] old haunts [illegible] Kelliher [illegible] out. He walked down Broadway [illegible] from the gang [illegible] along Broadway [illegible] White Way.

Then the Police Appeared.

His friends agreed with him. He was standing with some of them at Broadway and Forty-second street when the death blow came.

"Martie" was laughing with the joy of once more being on Broadway. Suddenly his face grew solemn, his laughter ceased and he hid his face behind the shoulders of the others.

IDLENESS GREAT BAD BOY EVIL

By SYBIL WAHNE.

[illegible] delinquency in our boys [illegible] out [illegible] of the situation [illegible] problem is the [illegible] institutions are [illegible] who look after [illegible] striking declaration [illegible] with Mrs. Esther M. [illegible] one of the foremost workers [illegible]

Need of Patience

[illegible] interview [illegible]

[illegible] streets. Frequently they are ill-fed. They are allowed to form bad habits. Is it any wonder that [illegible] sooner or later they are called to the attention of the court?

Idleness the Great Evil.

"It is then that we step in. First we visit the child's home. Then we scrutinize his school record. [illegible] parents and teacher [illegible] If the boy is out of employment we get him [illegible] We prevail upon him to attend school and to join a club or [illegible]

[illegible] herself and [illegible] demonstrates the lack of control over her children of this particular mother. She had reproved her 13-year-old girl for some mischievous act. Whereupon the child locked the mother in a closet and kept her there until she was released by neighbors.

Little Pickpocket Cured.

"Seventy-five per cent. of the solution of the problem [illegible] upon the training of the parents.

"Let me give [illegible] instance of how we brought [illegible] old boy [illegible] pickpocket. It required three [illegible] constant [illegible] unceasing attention [illegible] were worth it.

"The boy [illegible] for snatching pocketbooks [illegible] of our young women volunteers [illegible] interested in the case [illegible] six months [illegible] kept the [illegible] of trouble. Visiting the boy's home [illegible] times a week [illegible] kept him [illegible] busy and off the street.

"The father of the child was out of employment [illegible] work. She [illegible] was from the [illegible] End, was [illegible] to the suburbs. [illegible] the confidence of the family. They [illegible] operated [illegible] under the direction [illegible] manly, sensible lad [illegible] exercised [illegible] the right kind of supervision over [illegible]

Appeal to Boy's Honor.

"Despite the care and attention, however, the [illegible] mania broke out once more. He [illegible] once before the authorities, but his release was secured. And the educational and corrective efforts were continued.

"To-day the child is entirely cured of its mania and promises to grow up into a useful member of the community. It was a hard struggle, but the results were worth the effort.

"Do I believe in corporal punishment? I do not—except in the most extreme cases. A whipping too often, particularly with sensitive children, dwarfs the finer sensibilities of the child and arouses its passion. Almost always it fails of its purpose.

"I think a child can be reached by an appeal to its sense of justice and honor. If the child does a wrong and is told that it has [illegible] worked a grave injustice on some other member of the community, it usually has a salutary effect. It should be explained the whys and wherefore.

ARNOLD BENNETT WILL WRITE OF US AS WE ARE

By CHARLES HENRY MELTZER.

Arnold Bennett made no mention to [illegible] of his intention to favor us with a visit when I called on him some weeks ago at his French [illegible] little house near Fontainebleau.

He seemed too busy with his books and plays and [illegible] to have time for travel.

The latest of [illegible] works, a modern comedy written in collaboration with Edward Knoblauch, [illegible] and "Kismet" fame, had [illegible] been finished and [illegible] on the eve of production. His publishers were pressing him for more novels. The New Age and other weeklies were awaiting his smart views on current topics.

But, none the less, we have him with us now. And it behooves us to be nice and kind to him. [illegible] Arnold Bennett [illegible] no common man [illegible] unusual writer [illegible] to the point of cynicism both with himself and others [illegible] he has qualities [illegible] respect.

To Write Us Up.

He is an Englishman, with all the [illegible] earmarks. And yet no author who has ever crossed the seas [illegible] as American as this bright, clever, entertaining [illegible] stranger.

[illegible]

Before he took to writing plays and novels Arnold Bennett had been [illegible] an editor. He has [illegible] first rate reviewer [illegible] memory. His observation of the facts of human life is shrewd [illegible] He has no theories [illegible] realist.

Is Frank About Work.

His "Old Wives' Tale" [illegible] one of George Eliot and Mrs. Oliphant in its [illegible] truth and honest irony. There are passages in some of his books which compel comparisons with chapters in "Adam Bede" and "Salem Chapel." Yet certain of the works which bear [illegible] are of the flimsiest kind.

[illegible] inspired him [illegible] Dickens [illegible] excuses but as precedents [illegible] his mind and moods [illegible] autobiography [illegible] "The Truth [illegible]"

[illegible] Arnold Bennett is neither [illegible] At his best as in his "Old Wives' Tale," he is simply plain. His scorn of all that smacks of ideality is [illegible] concealed. But it is tempered by a curious [illegible] boyish frankness and redeemed by strength.

He Is Over Forty.

To look at him you would suppose him young. He might be thirty or at most some five years older. And he is forty-[illegible].

In private he is free from affectation. [illegible] at times he stammers [illegible] an agreeable host, an untiring worker. He is happily married to an attractive Frenchwoman and has no children.

He is a "hustler" and believes, like many authors who have made their mark in harnessing Pegasus. While some still lie abed, mapping their day out, he has completed a day's labor.

Nor are his interests confined to his own work. He is extremely musical, knows most of the composers of his time and is on terms of intimacy with some of the French musicians; he draws fairly well, frequents painters and counts sculptors among his acquaintances.

For women, I should say judging him less from what he admitted to me in conversation than from his statements in one book—he has not an unbounded reverence. The petty sides of women seem to impress him rather more than their fine qualities. But, when editing a woman's weekly newspaper at the outset of his career he found reason for not worshiping the sex.

Is Not a Feminist

He is not a "feminist." He is quite the contrary. Like Guy de Maupassant he [illegible] to study women and picks them to pieces dispassionately and without prejudice. He might feel hurt if you accused him of despising them. Yet he declines to let them take him in or blind him by their tricks and arts.

Within the past twelve years or so since he abandoned the routine of Fleet street for the fine independence which allows him to write plays and novels, Arnold Bennett has turned out a great deal of good work [illegible] in a [illegible] lifetime. And [illegible] put his name to some poor work of which he is by no means proud.

[illegible] the whole he should command no little interest [illegible] as a writer [illegible] of parts and fame. Those impressions which he proposes to give us may be casual. But they will certainly be well worth reading closely.

"My Boy," By Thomas Varland Richeson of Virginia in next SUNDAY'S AMERICAN

Ever since the death of little Avis Linnell of Hyannis the New England public has been anxious to know all about the Rev. Clarence V. T. Richeson, the young pastor now locked up on the charge of murder. Those who would know all about the Rev. Mr. Richeson will have to read the Boston Sunday AMERICAN. Thomas Varland Richeson, of Richeson Mountain, Amherst, Virginia, is writing the "Story of My Boy," EXCLUSIVELY for the Sunday AMERICAN. The FIRST INSTALMENT will appear in the Sunday AMERICAN of October 29. The elder Richeson did not know Avis Linnell. He will write about the boyhood, home life, school days and college experiences of his favorite son. He tells the story in the manly, straightforward way to be expected from a typical Virginian. After a glimpse at the first pages of the chronicle, we are ready to promise Sunday AMERICAN readers the most enthralling story that has yet been written about the accused clergyman. The story is illustrated by photographs available to no other newspaper. If you read its first paragraph you will want to read every word.

You MUST have the Sunday AMERICAN. You MAY not have it unless you SPEAK EARLY TO YOUR NEWSDEALER

EXPERTS MAKE EXPLORING SAFE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—This is the time of year that the explorers of the government departments are in the field, penetrating to the far interior of Alaska, scaling the highest mountains and exploring the unknown deserts of the Southwest.

A. H. Brooks, geologist in charge of the Alaskan work, knows more about that territory than any man living. He it was who took the first expeditions into Alaska, studied its geology, mapped its mountain ranges and reported upon its resources. He is [illegible] upon whom [illegible] calls for facts with relation to things Alaskan. Brooks is a scientist, a geologist, wears spectacles, has long hair, does not believe in adventure.

One day in the Alaskan wilds he gave directions for the moving of [illegible]. His directions were [illegible]. He spent the day in exploring and at night [illegible] at the point where [illegible] camp [illegible]. It was [illegible] signal shots [illegible] nothing [illegible] the night [illegible]. Next day took him [illegible] to the old camp [illegible] of the party [illegible] follow [illegible] a thing [illegible] by a [illegible] adventure.

Duel with a Goat.

Geologist [illegible] was the first man in the Geological Survey who had penetrated to interior Alaska. [illegible] the Alsek River [illegible] of the [illegible] of his party [illegible] stream is swift and [illegible]. Some blames [illegible] charged the goat [illegible].

The experiences of the wild are often strange. [illegible] Gardner holds the record of having fought the only hand to hand duel with a mountain goat on a precipice [illegible] been [illegible] of the stout hearts of the Geological Survey and [illegible] late nineties [illegible] on many [illegible] regions previously [illegible] of white man.

It was [illegible] the rest of his party [illegible] to gain [illegible] passage [illegible]. It was [illegible] the [illegible] was [illegible] disposed to give up the ledge and the goat showed equal determination. Gardner was [illegible] and the goat [illegible] front [illegible] goat [illegible] who sidestepped [illegible] process was repeated [illegible] each charge [illegible]. Finally [illegible] frightened [illegible] over the cliff and left the [illegible].

Another Bold Spirit.

Robert H. Chapman is a slender, rather delicate and [illegible] type [illegible] of man, yet to him is due [illegible] of wresting many of the secrets from that land of [illegible] Death Valley [illegible] miles with no water to quench the thirst [illegible]. It [illegible] its [illegible] over that [illegible].

The scientist knows exactly how far he can travel [illegible] amount of food and water. So with a given distance to travel he knows exactly how much food and water to take along. [illegible] weight make it impossible for him to cross a given desert. A shortage of one drink of water might mean [illegible] the scientist also refuses to make a further trip into such a region as [illegible] his given water supply.

[illegible] boasts [illegible] square miles [illegible] a single watering place known as [illegible] of the [illegible] creek which [illegible] a few miles and then sinks into the sand. It was from this latter point that [illegible] set out to triangulate the country from the top of Sheep range, [illegible] feet above the [illegible]. When two miles from camp it was discovered that one of the canteens had been left behind. The journey was [illegible]. But when the top of the peak chosen for the triangulation was reached it was found that [illegible] of still greater [illegible] and it was necessary to [illegible] to its top to secure the observations desired.

Horses Fall from Fatigue.

Night came on before the return to camp could be made and it was necessary to sleep on the mountain. [illegible] next morning the party set out with its eyes on the green treetops of [illegible] the horses fell beneath their riders. Suffering [illegible] the men staggered on [illegible] resisting the [illegible] in the [illegible] which always overtakes the one suffering from thirst. But for the fact that [illegible] party from camp appeared with [illegible] would have meant death to [illegible] party.

One of the best examples of the superiority of the scientific explorer over the mere adventurer is to be found in the [illegible] of Dr. W. J. McGee, government geologist, ethnologist and soil expert, in his trip to Tiburon Island in the Gulf of California. Upon this island dwell the Seri Indians, the most [illegible] and primitive people in the world to-day. These Indians are of gigantic stature and [illegible] that the [illegible] of any man from the outside world is damnation to them.

They therefore [illegible] expeditions. Sixty miles of desert and a stretch of exceedingly rough water separate them from inhabited Mexico. For 300 years they have successfully resisted all attempts to subdue them. Scores of parties of adventurers and prospectors, led on by the tales of a wealth of precious metals in Tiburon, have attempted to [illegible] and in practically every case up to the time of the McGee expedition the attempt had resulted in tragedy.

Met on Scientific Basis.

But Dr. McGee arranged his trip upon the principles of the scientific explorer. He knew the amount of supplies necessary to take his party across a sixty-mile desert and guarantee their return. He knew the necessary materials with which to build a craft that would make it possible for his party to cross the [illegible]. He knew the strength of a party equipped with modern firearms that would be required to beat off any attack of the [illegible]. He met every one of these requirements on a scientific basis. As a result the trip was made without any special risk. When Tiburon was reached Dr. McGee kept his fighting men together in such formations as to discourage any attack from the natives, who knew the danger of [illegible]. The entire expedition, which had proven death to many adventurers, was [illegible] made safe through the [illegible] of science.

So are [illegible] of the [illegible] and the [illegible] robbing the adventurers of the glory of their many accomplishments in the face of danger and death. So it is being demonstrated that adventure is a thing that comes only to the amateur, and is due to a lack of knowledge and precaution.

BURNS MAY KILL BRAINTREE BABY

Thomas Kennedy, three years old, whose parents live at No. 77 Railroad avenue, Braintree, was probably fatally burned to-day by kerosene which became ignited from a stove. The child was playing about the kitchen floor. While the mother's back was turned the boy picked up a cup containing kerosene and placed it in front of the stove. The child inhaled the flames.

WATERFRONT WAR CLOUD

By MORTON BIRGE.

The clerks along the waterfront are spoiling for a muss.
The squealing steamer whistles are the cause of [illegible] fuss.
Each skipper blows a whistle as his boat comes up the stream.
The progress of the vessel is a shrieking, siren scream.

The clerks stuff cotton in each ear. The skippers have their goat.
They curse all skippers fore and aft and everything afloat.
The skipper grabs the speaking tube and tells the engineer,
"Hey, Bill, just whistle once again and [illegible] know we're here."

Atlantic avenue is [illegible]. The clerks have made a threat.
"This whistling racket's got to stop and we will stop it yet."
The skippers dance upon the deck and call for extra steam,
And turn the whistle loose again and they come up the stream.

MOTHERHOOD IS BEST OF RICHES

"The woman who has a baby in her arms has the [illegible] argument for happiness that has ever been found."

So [illegible] Mrs. Kathleen Norris, [illegible] her arguments [illegible] the strongest argument of all, whose name is [illegible] was just eleven months old. [illegible] story which is called "Mother," [illegible] has just been published.

Mrs. Norris's philosophy of motherhood is [illegible] appeal, for she urges [illegible] have children for their own [illegible] rather than for the good of [illegible] their duty to society or any other [illegible] abstraction with which the masses of femininity do not concern themselves.

Of course, if a baby is an argument for happiness, the more arguments the more happiness. Hence Mrs. Norris believes in the large family, and her story is a strong, simple and beautiful study of a woman who found her happiness in ministering to her husband and their large brood. It tells, too, of the revolt of one of the daughters from the old ideals and of her ultimate return to them.

The Real Triumph.

Mrs. Norris [illegible] in New York, is by birth a [illegible] and in appearance she has the [illegible] loveliness which the western state [illegible] flowers of [illegible].

"I don't want to seem opinionated," Mrs. Norris [illegible] "but I find that my own baby has brought me more happiness than anything else in life, and when I see the number of unhappy and childless women in New York I wonder if they quite realize what they are missing.

"No triumph of society, of a profession or an art can give a woman the [illegible] tender joy that comes to the poorest mother with even the most unpromising, drooling baby in her arms.

"I see very poor women with badly dressed babies in the Subway sometimes, and I always look at them and think: 'Well, you have found the key to happiness which so many wealthier women have thrown away.'

"Before my own baby came I used to be oppressed sometimes by the inequalities of life, the perpetual unfairness which gives everything to some women, nothing to others. But a mother knows better than that.

"I believe firmly that the poorest mother of a child is richer than any childless daughter of luxury.

Many Childless Homes.

"What are our women coming to if they persist in shirking the responsibilities of life? Think of the thousands of homes in which there are no children, the other thousands in which there are but one. It is unfair to a child not to give him little brothers and sisters to play and study with. Think of his loneliness, surrounded by grown persons, as he is for the most part.

"It is useless to say that I do not believe a man making $12 a week should have nine children. I mean that wherever there is a home, a house—there should be a houseful of children.

"And yet how many empty houses there are! We spent two Summers in a country place near New York peopled mostly by families with incomes ranging from $5,000 to $7,000 a year. Nearly all the women were childless, and the others wished they were. Why, when my baby was born a woman came to me and said: 'We [illegible] come to see your little ball and chain.'

"A baby is a ball and chain in a way," Mrs. Norris admitted, "but it chains a woman to responsibilities, to unselfishness, to the sane, real things of life.

"What does a woman who spends the morning getting manicured and combing out her puffs on a pillow and the afternoon playing bridge contribute to her generation? Why, such women, every one of them, might be dropped into the aching void and the world would roll on exulting in the loss of a burden.

Joy of Motherhood.

"Motherhood means so much more than just having [illegible] and turning it over to a nurse. [illegible] a man should come home some day and say to his wife:

"'Well, [illegible], I've found some one to run my business for $25 a month. That'll give me time to take German lessons and reduce my figure.'

"Wouldn't [illegible] he had gone crazy? And yet that's what every woman does who turns her home over to a $25 servant and her child to a $20 nurse. Mothers should be [illegible] their children to look after their mental and physical welfare.

"There isn't anything a mother shouldn't know. How can she help her little boy who seems interested in science, her little girl who has a talent for [illegible], unless she tries to be proficient in the things her children want to know? We hear a lot about the woman with the profession, and she, at least, has some usefulness, some value to the world. But motherhood is all the professions when it is practiced efficiently."

"But perhaps you are a born mother," was suggested. "There are many women to whom domestic joys might not be so satisfying."

"Yes," Mrs. Norris admitted, "but I think all women are born mothers if they only give themselves a chance to find it out. My mother had six children and she brought them all up to a healthy, happy maturity, and they all believed in their mother more than in anything else on earth. What more could a woman accomplish than that—any woman?"

GREEN'S CASE WORRIES G. O. P.

Major Robert E. Green of the staff of Governor Foss is a promising candidate for the House of Representatives from the Brookline district that last year sent Speaker Walker and Representative Norman White to the halls of legislation.

Major Green, though not then a major, put up a gallant fight last Fall against the two Republican leaders. He cut down their plurality, and nothing but the rock ribbed partisan Republicanism of the wealthy suburban town saved one of them from defeat.

This year Major Green is a candidate of the Democratic party again, and the [illegible] leaders are quite a little disturbed lest one of the seats held by Republican chiefs from Brookline might go to a Democrat. Major Green is putting up an effective campaign.

By birth he is a Southerner, although sprung from the family of General Nathaniel Green of Rhode Island revolutionary fame. He was born in Westmoreland county, Virginia, less than two miles distant from the birthplace of Washington. He came to New York in 1888 and to Boston in 18[illegible]. Since then he has been active in the business and social life of Boston. He resides in Brookline. He served nine years in the militia of Massachusetts before being appointed upon the staff of Governor Foss, is a member of the First Corps of Cadets and a Past Exalted Ruler of Brookline Lodge of Elks. His candidacy for a seat in the House of Representatives is dangerous from a Republican standpoint. Brookline Republicans fear that he may take away one of the seats in the House that has never been filled before by a Democrat.

Awarded the Glidden Trophy

Think of this great journey in the Classic touring contest of the world.

Think of the sustained speed and unexampled reliability required to make this journey of 1450 miles from New-York to Jacksonville, arriving at each control on a time-table schedule and with the regularity of the world's best railroad train.

Unless the Maxwell car was perfect in construction and properly balanced, it could not have survived such a journey. Not one car, but three cars finished this long journey with a perfect score. Unless the car had great power, easy riding qualities, perfect lubrication, efficient transmission, and was constructed properly throughout, it could not have completed this journey and won this world-famed throphy that stamps it one of the greatest touring cars in the world at any price, and America's

HOW AN ALL-AMERICA TACKLE VIEWS FIRST BIG FOOTBALL GAME OF YEAR

Henry Hobbs, the former Yale star and gridiron expert, will write a detailed story of the Harvard-Brown contest for the Sunday AMERICAN. He will cover the game from all angles play by play. If you want to read the best accounts get Sunday's AMERICAN

Brown Has Fine Chance to Win Over Harvard, Says Hobbs

THE LINE-UP.

By HENRY W. HOBBS.

[illegible]

When the [illegible] and Brown elevens [illegible]

[illegible] for the first [illegible]

[illegible] tremendous drive which will carry anything before it offensively and that it is a stonewall defensive proposition.

No Good Team Play Apparent.

[illegible]

Sprackling the Star.

Sprackling, Brown's captain and quarterback, [illegible] on a good dry field is dangerous any time when he is within his opponents' 45-yard line when he attempts his drop kicks.

His return of punts is brilliant. His forward passes [illegible]

[illegible]

Great Chance for Brown.

Bartlett, Goldberg and Kulp are large, powerful mastodons of the line upon whose work will depend in a great deal the result of the game.

There will probably be much open play, such as plenty of kicking and forward passing. There probably will come a break in the game, such as a fumble [illegible] when they can draw [illegible] over [illegible]

[illegible] the season's records of the two elevens, Brown and Harvard [illegible] points scored [illegible] the former eleven has the [illegible] over the [illegible] Whether Brown makes full use of this chance remains to be seen.

Holy Cross Off to Princeton.

[illegible]

[illegible] making safe [illegible] each pass.

Captain Howe Not to Play.

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 27.—Head Coach [illegible]

[illegible] of the Yale [illegible] the ex-Captain [illegible]

"Aggie" Stars Confined to Rooms.

AMHERST, Oct. 27.—An epidemic of [illegible] and grip has [illegible] the Massachusetts Agricultural campus and the team is sorely crippled, with Hayden, Baker and Brown [illegible] confined to their rooms [illegible]

[illegible] looking for a victory [illegible] Medford.

Green to try New Plays.

HANOVER, Oct. 27.—[illegible] yesterday [illegible] coaches [illegible] to say that the rumor was abroad [illegible]

Makes Hundred-Yard Run.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Oct. 27.—Coach Daly [illegible] for the New York University [illegible]

[illegible] several times [illegible] the ball from the middle of the field [illegible]

Mahan Kicks Field Goal

ANDOVER, Oct. 27.—The practice on Brothers Field yesterday was not at all [illegible] and the line will take a great deal of [illegible] in order to whip it into any kind of shape for the Dartmouth freshman game at Hanover to-morrow. Several of the [illegible]

[illegible] and Wiley had a long [illegible] kicking.

Miles Declared Ineligible.

AMHERST, Oct. 27.—In the last practice before Saturday's game with Norwich the Amherst [illegible]

[illegible] Connolly, S. Hubbard and [illegible] with Seaman and [illegible] Hubbard at [illegible] Miles has been found ineligible, his [illegible] last Saturday having been through a mistake. The line will probably be the same as in last week's game.

Scrubs Defeat Tigers.

PRINCETON, Oct. 27.—The Tiger varsity received the worst drubbing that they have experienced in years at the hands of the scrub eleven yesterday afternoon in two thirty-five-minute periods of scrimmage. [illegible] the second string men crossed the varsity goal line [illegible] Thompson, the present holder of the A. A. U. all-around championship, a student at the Theological Seminary, was the [illegible] of most of the score. The varsity line was not able to hold him at any time and many times he got by the secondary defense. He found big holes to go through and the varsity line was almost as powerless [illegible]

[illegible] line on plunges for he had no holes opened for Duff and Wilson were at the guard position [illegible] Captain Hart was at his position at left tackle. McLean and Phillips alternated at the other tackle position. The work of the varsity on the whole was very discouraging and with only one day before the Holy Cross game things don't look very bright for the Tigers for they will not be able to do any very hard work to-day.

Ends Show Up Well.

MIDDLETOWN, Oct. 27.—Coach Verhis received help yesterday from Gordon '92 of Hartford and Day '97 of this city [illegible] Wesleyan [illegible] Trinity at Hartford [illegible]

[illegible] Diamond [illegible] defense.

ON TO STADIUM BROWN WAR CRY

By F. C. PERRY.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 27.—On to the Stadium is the battle cry of Brown supporters. Captain Sprackling's great eleven is in perfect condition and ready to put up the battle of a lifetime. The stocky Brown leader is [illegible] that there will be cause for joy in this city when the news of to-morrow's game by the Stadium is sent over the wires.

Brown has one of the greatest elevens in years and feels certain that this aggregation will down the Crimson warriors of Harvard. Brown lost to Harvard last year in a thrilling contest by a score of 12 to 0.

This year Brown has a great eleven. On the other hand, Harvard is none too strong, and it is the opinion here they will be lucky if it holds Sprackling's team.

All the men injured in the game with Pennsylvania last [illegible] are now back in the game. [illegible] Adams, the end, who received a bad poison [illegible] in one of the [illegible] is [illegible] but it is thought he will be back in the game.

Kulp, who went into the Penn game has completely recovered from his injuries and will be able to do his part in trying to win from the Crimson.

Many Brown Stars.

Brown coaches are set upon losing Harvard into camp before tackling Yale. Last year Brown beat Old Eli by a score of 21 to 0. This year Brown will be satisfied to win by a smaller score.

The work of Captain Sprackling of Brown has been one of the big sensations of the year. And it is yet [illegible] that Sprackling will continue his good work against the Crimson. He is one of the best all-round players [illegible]

Crowther is another [illegible] Harvard plenty of trouble. He is as fast as [illegible] on his feet and is very quick in sizing up an opponent's play.

Metcalf, Tenney, Jones and Snell are great backs, and when they get going it is a pretty difficult proposition to bring any of this quartet to the ground.

Metcalf is a willing worker and plugged two years to make the varsity but injuries and his light weight kept him out. Now, however, he is beginning to attract the attention of the coaches and may be given an opportunity to show what he can do against Harvard.

Battle on for Position.

There is a possibility, now that Bartlett is eligible, Goldberg will not be used regularly, although the coaches have decided on no change as yet. If a shift is made, Bartlett will take his regular position at right tackle, while Gelb, who has been playing there, will be moved over to Goldberg's berth at guard, on the same side of the line.

It seems settled that Bartlett will have a tackle job, and it lies between Gelb and Goldberg for the guard's place. Gelb, though considerably lighter than Goldberg, is much faster, and it is a toss-up between the two men.

The team that lines up against Harvard at the Stadium will be the heaviest that Brown has turned out for many years, the average weight of the eleven being 180.3 pounds. Every man on the team with the possible exception of Goldberg, who seems a little fat, carries his weight well and combines with it speed of foot.

Brown Sure of Victory.

Marble, who redeemed himself in the Penn game, is carded to start at left half but in all probability will be taken out before the end of the game so that Crowther may be used. This substitution will lighten the team, as Crowther weighs only 140 pounds, against Marble's 173.

Bartlett will play left tackle in place of Gelb, who is nine pounds lighter, so the Providence boys will not go into the game with their heaviest team.

A great crowd of rooters will leave for Boston to-night with large bunches of the long green. Brown has a great team and should win.

HARVARD SURE OF BROWN GAME

By TED PARKE.

[illegible] the college football game which [illegible] the most attention to-morrow [illegible] between Harvard and Brown [illegible] Stadium.

Harvard [illegible] as well fitted as possible [illegible] the number of [illegible] this year, due to [illegible] and although Harvard [illegible] on the [illegible] the supporters of the Crimson are by no means [illegible] that Brown [illegible] certainty of a victory.

In the first place Brown comes to the Stadium with [illegible] the [illegible] of [illegible] Harvard [illegible]

[illegible] Harvard [illegible] defense [illegible] of worry [illegible]

Crimson Looks for Win.

Harvard looks for a hard game with a [illegible] Although the [illegible] outweighs the Crimson [illegible] that will [illegible] defensive [illegible] Harvard has shown [illegible] the Brown team will be kept away from the Harvard goal.

Harvard's [illegible] defence this year [illegible] a great deal of [illegible] the Harvard supporters. [illegible] by putting Smith at left end where the weakness [illegible] of the Harvard line with Fisher, Gardiner and [illegible] the left side of the line with [illegible] and Smith [illegible] will also [illegible]

[illegible] defence, with Wendell and Huntington [illegible] opponent of Harvard [illegible] for years. With this [illegible] will be little chance for any gains through on straight rushing.

Fear Forward Pass.

Harvard's line [illegible] the forward pass. Plenty of practice has been given the Harvard eleven this week in breaking up this [illegible] in the [illegible] of the Brown game, for Brown [illegible] was the [illegible] last year in the use of this play and is [illegible] same [illegible]

After a thorough [illegible] this past week in the various [illegible] against this play [illegible] Brown will find it a hard job to [illegible] and a repetition of the [illegible] made last year is [illegible]

Harvard goes [illegible] with the idea of winning. Wendell [illegible] line [illegible] to [illegible] drive Brown back.

SELECT RELAY TEAMS AT TECH

Fifty men ran time trials at Tech Field for positions on the sophomore and freshman relay teams which are to race on the annual field day of the two lower classes of the Institute, on November 3.

The freshmen had the largest squad that ever came out for the team, thirty-two men running for a place on the team.

The race is between twenty-four men, twelve of each team, each man running a furlong. The teams are very evenly matched and an exciting race is assured.

BOWDOIN AND TUFTS GRIDIRON GAME OFF

Tufts and Bowdoin, for many years bitter rivals on the gridiron field, will not meet on the gridiron this fall for their annual class. From present indications, it looks as [illegible] the relations between these two colleges has been severed because of the failure of the colleges to come to an agreement for a series of games covering a period of several years.

WHITNEY ELECTED FRESHMAN CAPTAIN

HANOVER, Oct. 27.—"Larry" Whitney, the former Worcester Academy athlete and B. A. A. weight man in track events, has been elected captain of the Dartmouth freshman football team. Whitney should prove a valuable man for the varsity next year.

FRESHMEN TO PLAY

The Tufts freshmen will have their first taste of real football this afternoon when they line up against the Boston Y. M. C. A. Day School team on the old campus.

"Hurrah for the Athletics," Says Giant Indian Catcher

By CHIEF MEYERS.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 27.—"Hurrah for the Athletics!" They are champions of the world and they deserve to be. There is no use of making excuses. They beat us, and beat us fairly.

Of course we are all disappointed to lose the honor, and the extra thousand dollars or more which went along with it, but we are game enough sports to take our caps to an outfit which ranks us.

I will not predict that this game was hard luck. I think that in the previous games every one has been deceived by the "breaks" which are natural to any contest on the diamond.

A [illegible] gets a sudden advantage [illegible] in fielding or batting and goes to the front. The professors who used to teach me at [illegible] would call this the psychological moment.

Every [illegible] in this World's Series. It has been Philadelphia who got the best breaks of psychological moment when it meant hits or runs.

Athletics Deserved to Win.

I wish to [illegible] on this [illegible] Connie Mack's Quaker team won from us because they deserved to. He has a [illegible] aggressive, hard hitting bunch.

And their fielding is very [illegible] behind their batting. Every Giant will agree that they [illegible] fairly and squarely.

My [illegible] of [illegible] defeat in the World's Series is that we have not been able [illegible]

[illegible] during our last swing around the Western circuit [illegible] New York Club [illegible]

An [illegible] somehow [illegible] the Polo Grounds [illegible]

[illegible] one part [illegible] it may [illegible] the American League twirlers were better than any we had [illegible]

Any [illegible]

[illegible] who have [illegible] the New York club [illegible] series.

Athletics Are Sluggers.

The last game was the only game in which they gave us a real trimming. The previous [illegible] upon some one [illegible] or other. Eddie [illegible] error in the first game [illegible] Baker's home runs [illegible] and the continued walking [illegible] the Quaker outfit in one inning of the next.

As I have said several times in these articles, what are you going to do? What is anybody going to do with a crowd of sluggers like this?

Just at the turning point in the game Barry [illegible] and Ames, trying to get him at first, hit him in the back with the ball, which bounded off into the field. Murray's throw to [illegible] was a little [illegible] Devore who backed [illegible] the play [illegible] throw to the [illegible] also wide, and the Athletics [illegible] bases were all safe.

We [illegible] knew that [illegible] they were going [illegible] at the Athletics had us. Once this team of Connie Mack's gets a break they go it like fiends. They take advantage of every little thing that falls their way. They are wide awake, all of them, every man.

Please excuse me from saying anything about the Athletics' half of that sorrowful fourth inning. It was bing, bing, bang.

The way the Quakers came across the plate [illegible] of the parade during [illegible] They just [illegible] and the best [illegible] across the plate with grins on their faces.

Knew Giants were Beaten.

Of course we knew by this time that we were licked. The only thing we could do was be licked and take it.

Nothing [illegible] from me about that seventh inning unless somebody puts me under the third degree. I saw by the scoreboard [illegible] the number of tallies [illegible] half a dozen and so [illegible]

[illegible] It was all off. [illegible]

[illegible] drawing near its end I asked McGraw to let me out and let Wilson [illegible] so that his name [illegible] World's Series game.

I was glad to see at the same time that Harry Davis [illegible] to let "Stuffy" McInnis get [illegible] score. Both are good boys and [illegible]

Battle of Pitchers.

It was in the main, a battle of pitchers. We, who for many games straight had triumphed over the best the National League could offer us, couldn't hit Connie Mack's mound men.

They, on the other hand, were able to get to what I think is the greatest pair of pitchers in the world, Christy Mathewson and [illegible] Marquard.

The Athletics [illegible] work [illegible] they were [illegible] aggressive [illegible] who have had an easy run of it throughout the season while we were fighting for our laurels in the West. My [illegible]

Next year the same two clubs will be battling for the world's championship. New York [illegible] needs pitchers. By that time we will get them. Leave that to Manager John McGraw, the greatest [illegible] in the world.

Naturally we are disappointed. [illegible] that difference [illegible] losers' share of [illegible] receipts amounts to something.

Also our pride is hurt. Personally I would rather next year wear a uniform with "WORLD'S CHAMPIONS" than have the thousand. Most of the other boys feel the same way.

But we are a young club. In our own league we were [illegible] We don't mind admitting that the American League this year turned out a better outfit.

We were [illegible] I will admit again squarely and fairly. But we were [illegible] only in this last game.

My farewell words as a writer are: Mr. Baker and You Athletics, this time next year look out for us Giants.

Eddie Murphy New Terror of the Lightweight Class

By JACK CONWAY.

Eddie Murphy, the clever South Boston lightweight, can't get a match these bright October mornings. And it isn't because Eddie lacks class either. The trouble with the Peninsular favorite is that he is too adept a pupil at his favorite pastime, and is mussing up all lightweights who will agree to meet him within the squared circle. And the headliners in the manly art are well aware of this fact.

Ad Wolgast, Matt Wells, Pal Moore, Knockout Brown, Freddy Welsh and Packey McFarland are included among the number who refuse to meet Murphy. But according to Joe McCarthy [illegible] has [illegible] Round Hogan [illegible] Young Saylor [illegible] "Won't Fight Murphy" [illegible]

In speaking [illegible] he is experiencing in getting [illegible] for his protege McCarthy said:

"Every fighter in the [illegible] of importance has turned me down when I tried to get a match for Murphy. [illegible] part of the entire affair is that some of the big fellows try and give the impression that Murphy is nothing more [illegible] third rater. [illegible] tried to match Eddie with Young Saylor [illegible] to meet Murphy the people of Indianapolis [illegible]

"Matty Baldwin and One Round Hogan [illegible] but they turned down the offers [illegible]

"It has been claimed that Murphy cannot make 133 pounds at 3 o'clock. If this is true, why don't some of these advertised champions call my bluff? The truth of the matter is that they are afraid to fight Murphy and are only [illegible] to give some tactful excuse in order to avoid a meeting."

Eddie a Tough Customer.

The Peninsular fighter has been camping on the trail of Saylor for [illegible] Murphy was at the ringside when Saylor fought Tommy Langdon in [illegible] last Winter and after the mill [illegible] favored the meeting, but [illegible] he was in [illegible] of what a tough customer Eddie was [illegible] refused to go [illegible] with him under any [illegible]

Murphy is twenty-two years of age and has been boxing for five years. During [illegible] has defeated such well known performers as George Memsic, [illegible] Kelly, [illegible] O'Keefe, [illegible] Frankie Madden, Johnny Wh[illegible], Jack Moran and Joe Hurst.

When Murphy started [illegible] as a boxer he was a [illegible] of class among [illegible] But after a time he developed a great deal of cleverness and is now able to hold his own with the classiest men [illegible] Murphy has never been knocked [illegible] entered the ring [illegible] punishment [illegible] of them.

[illegible] Murphy's [illegible] little, at [illegible] work [illegible] too good.

Battling Nelson [illegible] kind of fr[illegible] a result of his showing against Mont[illegible] at Manchester, N. H., the other night [illegible] former [illegible] that he [illegible] will soon be a [illegible] the best of them [illegible] a good lightweight but he is far [illegible] It wouldn't [illegible] was matched for [illegible] Matty Baldwin or One Round Hogan [illegible] lightweight at the Armory [illegible] a few weeks [illegible] never will regain his [illegible] title [illegible] nevertheless [illegible] who are eager to see the veteran [illegible] perform.

There should be plenty of real action when Billy Papke and Bob Moha clash at the Armory A. A. next Tuesday night. The men will come in at catchweights [illegible] a bout between [illegible] middleweights [illegible] lightweight. But at that [illegible] a rugged contest [illegible] one worth travelling several miles to witness. Moha showed in this city several weeks ago [illegible] Billy Berger and [illegible] in a walk. Fighting Bob is a great hitter and a clever boxer and is sure to lead the "Illinois Thunderbolt" a merry chase.

BAKER HIT BEST IN BIG SERIES

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 27.—The official batting and fielding averages of the Athletics and New York players in the world's series compiled by [illegible] of this city and J. G. Taylor [illegible] of St. Louis, the official scorers [illegible] by the National Commission, have been announced.

For the world's champions Baker leads at bat with an average of .375. Barry is second with [illegible] Murphy third with [illegible]

The team batting average of the [illegible] Lord and [illegible] are the [illegible] Philadelphia players who took part in the six games who have a fielding average of 1000.

Crandall leads the Giants at the bat with an average of .500. [illegible] took part in only three games. Of the players who took part in the six games Captain Doyle leads with a percentage of [illegible] Meyers is second with .300 and Herzog third with .190.

Mathewson has an average of .286, but he was in but three games. The team batting average is .175.

Snodgrass and Meyers each have a field[illegible] average of 1000 in the six games. Murray made the poorest showing of any of the Giants. He did not make a hit during the series and his fielding is rated at .625.

The Athletics excelled in every department of the game with the exception of stolen bases and they are tied with their opponents at four in this particular branch.

ANDY PARKER DRAWS WITH JIM MORIARTY

LAWRENCE, Oct. 27.—At the end of twelve rounds of hurricane milling between Andy Parker of New York and Jim Moriarty of Lowell at the [illegible] Club last night, Referee [illegible] was [illegible] to [illegible] the contest a draw, the [illegible] being [illegible] In the preliminaries Kid [illegible] of Newburyport lost to Johnny [illegible] of Lawrence in [illegible] rounds. [illegible] of Lawrence put Joe Myers of [illegible] away in the second round. [illegible] Kenny of Cambridge gained the award over Jack Smith of Lawrence in six rounds.

WALTHAM MAY PLAY SOMERVILLE AGAIN

Edwin P. Fitzgerald, treasurer of the Somerville High School athletic teams and Arthur N. Burke of the Waltham High School faculty have held a conference regarding the possibility of a post season game December 2 at Somerville. Although the matter is not settled, the game is likely to be played.

'BETTER TEAM WON' SAYS WARD

By JOHN MONTGOMERY WARD.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—Across the face of record of yesterday's final game let us draw the mantle of charity and silence. Any attempt to go into details would be harrowing. There were a few fleeting moments when the Giants looked good but what occurred after that is not fit for publication.

Ames, who started in to pitch for the Giants, was going along well [illegible] when [illegible] first [illegible] and more [illegible] stopped a [illegible] hit and but, what's the use? It's all [illegible]

There are, however, a few things to be said about the series. We have all tried to jolly ourselves into believing that the Athletics were winning because they had the better of the luck. Now that's all [illegible] be candid and fair.

Whatever we may think as to their [illegible] in a long series against the [illegible] we must admit that in this series [illegible] have been the class. In fielding I [illegible] the New Yorks have performed more [illegible] and in base running the honors were about even.

But in pitching and batting the Athletics have shown to much great advantage, and therein lies the explanation of their victory.

As for any new features in the play I have looked for them in vain. Of the "hit and run" game of the Athletics and the base stealing of the Giants, concerning [illegible] of which we heard so much before the series began, I saw but little in evidence.

In any event neither team can claim any modern origin. The only play in the entire series that is comparatively new to the game is the so-called "squeeze play," twice attempted by the Athletics.

The first time it was made to look foolish, and the second time, yesterday, it succeeded all right, but at a time when it was entirely unnecessary and [illegible] no good. I believe with Jennings and McGraw it is a losing play.

As to the final result, candor and good sportsmanship compel us to admit that the better team won.

The Athletics are a seasoned, alert, well balanced and high class organization. They have played the cleanest possible ball and are fully entitled to all the emoluments and honors that go by right to the victors in a great contest.

BRAE-BURN GOLFERS STATE CHAMPIONS

Brae Burn won the title of team champions in the Massachusetts golfing district by defeating Vesper in the finals at the Country Club by six points to three. Three foursomes and six single matches were played, one point being scored for each match.

COBB MAY JOIN HIGHLANDERS

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 27.—T. Cobb, regarded as the greatest [illegible] player of the century [illegible] in the uniform of a New York [illegible] next season [illegible] team expires [illegible] President Ban Johnson of the American League is figured [illegible] in the [illegible] drawing [illegible] American League.

[illegible] World's Series [illegible] today Jennings of the Tigers [illegible] season [illegible] which [illegible] transfer of Cobb from Detroit to New York.

[illegible] would take [illegible] gossip among [illegible] that Johnson is planning to make it [illegible] for the National League in at least four cities next season. These cities are Boston, where McAleer is to [illegible] the team, Cleveland, where Harry Davis probably will shine, Chicago, where Callahan will manage the White Sox, and New York, with Hal Chase as manager and Ty Cobb as a side light to draw the crowds.

GALLANT DEFEATS JOE CAMPBELL

ADAMS, Oct. 27.—Johnny Gallant of Boston got the decision [illegible] a narrow margin over Joe Campbell of Albany in their ten round [illegible] before the Northern Berkshire A. C. [illegible] The bout was fast from the [illegible] and the honors were equally divided up to the fifth round. In this round the Boston boy got in some effective work and had his opponent going. But in the next two rounds the colored lad came back for his share of the honors. While Campbell showed more science than his opponent his work lacked effectiveness. Gallant, on the other hand, was satisfied to be less aggressive, but took better advantage of his opportunities.

How to Be Beautiful

By MARGARET HUBBARD AYER

BEING good looking is largely a matter of [illegible] power.

It is a question of self-control.

Oh, you know coffee doesn't agree with me, but I simply love it. Another cup, please.

That is the refrain of the early morning and during the day the woman who so ardently wishes to be beautiful succumbs to one after another of the temptations which she knows she should resist if she wants to keep the pinks in her cheeks and develop them.

Many of these temptations meet her at the table, but her road is beset with them at every turn.

There is the desire to be lazy, especially prevalent among the [illegible] sisterhood. No woman [illegible] has to be lazy unless she wants to [illegible] beyond a certain point. It is easier to get fat and then bewail [illegible] baths than to [illegible] for too much and too many sweets [illegible] exercise both brain and [illegible] system [illegible].

The woman who is very [illegible] insists on worrying [illegible] things [illegible] and unnecessary worries from her mind by making a determined effort of the will. She might [illegible] make herself look [illegible] things [illegible]. Personally I have never seen [illegible] people who profess [illegible] Creator [illegible] assed and worried as if [illegible] ally responsible for [illegible] universe.

At [illegible] shoulders is [illegible] careworn [illegible] with a visage [illegible] with wrinkles [illegible] earth off [illegible] would have [illegible] suspended for quite a while [illegible] help.

There are thousands of [illegible] Atlases. One sees their careworn faces everywhere, carrying an imaginary load of [illegible].

We [illegible] I am [illegible] temperament [illegible] to [illegible] something [illegible].

[illegible] would say that to the one [illegible] ask for a wrinkle remedy with the next. Worry with them [illegible] as [illegible] is with [illegible].

[illegible] are not made [illegible] about their [illegible] long after [illegible] then they [illegible] what all the lesser [illegible] have long [illegible] and what the French called [illegible].

Will power is the first aid to beauty.

Usually the Way

THE noted actor who had consented to give a reading for the benefit of [illegible] arrived home late that night with a worried look on his face.

"Why, my dear," said his wife, "wasn't the reading a success?"

"No. I didn't do it at all," he replied, dropping into a chair moodily.

"Didn't read it at all?"

"No. You see, the chairman of the reception committee first made a speech introducing the chairman of the [illegible] committee. He got up and told about the excellent work of the [illegible] treasurer, who got up and made a speech [illegible] for next year and introduced the president of the association, who [illegible] the work of the [illegible] and then introduced the chairman of the meeting, who was to introduce me. [illegible] the audience was leaving. So I slipped round to the door and came out with them."

Polish Silver

OVER in Paris they are wearing a great deal of Polish silver which does not tarnish. The shops will probably bring it here and it would be wise for women to look it up and use it. Belt buckles, buttons, antique brooches, and the heavy crosses which women are wearing on the black velvet ribbons around their necks are all made of this metal, and the prices in Paris are very small. They will double, of course, when they get to America, but even then they may not be expensive.

HICTANER

The Man That Lived in the Water—One of the Strangest Stories Ever Written

By Jean de la Hire

TO DAY'S INSTALMENT

"I AM called M[illegible]" [illegible] the young girl.

Moisette [illegible] to the tongue, like a M[illegible] Anemone whose [illegible] have too.

"This morning [illegible] necklace of pearls [illegible] seemed very [illegible] like to deck [illegible] with [illegible] of the sea like these."

[illegible] pearls [illegible] find in [illegible] waters. Take [illegible] and if [illegible] them [illegible] to me, don't [illegible] this morning.

At these words Hictaner [illegible] himself in Aurora's [illegible] Moisette and dropped the [illegible] into the delighted young girl's [illegible].

There was a long pause. Moisette was confused with [illegible] emotions. She wished to ask [illegible] questions in order to really understand. Therefore she [illegible] by that logic hidden in each [illegible] simply said:

"Who are you?"

"I am Hictaner, son of F[illegible] [illegible] Oxus. We are the last of our race, we three."

At this preposterous reply Moisette uttered a cry of amazement. She was about to ask more, but a sudden thought checked the words upon her lips.

Her thought was: "There is a great mystery in the Lost Isle, perhaps a terrible one. I must know more."

As she was formulating the thought, however, she heard Hictaner asking:

"And you, who are you?"

Naïvely she replied:

"I am Moisette, daughter of Oxus."

"Daughter of Oxus," exclaimed Hictaner. "Oxus is [illegible] the [illegible] of [illegible] and [illegible]."

"Oxus is not of [illegible] kind?" repeated Moisette. [illegible] What is the mystery which [illegible] which has been revealing itself [illegible] morning?"

Seeking the Truth

She rose with calm [illegible] and clear will, resolved to bring light [illegible] this darkness all about her and [illegible] ening to submerge her love itself.

"Listen to me," said Moisette. "You are Hictaner, did you say? Hictaner is a word composed of the Greek ichthus—fish, and aner—man. Hictaner thus means man-fish.

"Did you know that?"

"I don't know it before," replied Hictaner in an astonished voice. "I know that my race, though living in the water, has [illegible] resemblance to the human species which lives only on land and dies in water."

"Can you then live in the water?" asked Moisette, decided now not to be surprised at anything.

"Yes, always—by nature."

"That is strange. But still you can live on land."

"Yes, for forty-eight hours."

"Forty-eight hours," echoed the young girl.

"Yes, but as the upper air is not my native element, at the end of that length of time, I feel as if I were suffocating and I know that I should die if I did not go back to the water at once."

While [illegible] was speaking Moisette lowered her head. She reflected a few moments, then said resolutely:

"Give [illegible] hand," holding out her right, in which Hictaner placed his left. As their hands touched they both trembled.

"Now come with me."

Still holding Hictaner sprang from rock to rock at Moisette's side. Stopping before the trapdoor she opened it. Then descending the stairway with the strange and astonished young man she led him along the hall to the female quarters and into her little salon, where she found Dora arranging the ornaments in the room.

Uttered a Cry

The negress uttered a cry at beholding this strange young man, clad in silver, hand in hand with Moisette.

"Dora," said the young girl gravely, "I [illegible] you very [illegible]. But if you speak in any way whatever of what you see at this moment, and what you may see hereafter I will kill you with my own hands."

"My good mistress may set her mind at rest," answered the servant. "Dora can keep a secret."

"I believe you. Go to your room, and if any one comes let me know."

Dora bowed and went out.

Moisette pushed the marvelling Hictaner down upon a divan and took a seat facing him.

"And now, chosen of my heart," she said holding out her hands to the young man, "we can unburden ourselves to one another.

"We can explain some of the things which amaze us both, and perhaps we may decipher the enigma of the Lost Isle."

After leaving Moisette, Charles Severac went to the laboratory. Oxus and [illegible] were waiting for him, and the three men occupied themselves once more with the terrible problem of conquering the world.

To Be Continued To-morrow

"Hictaner" is running serially in the daily and Sunday AMERICAN. A liberal instalment of this remarkable mystery novel will be printed in Sunday's AMERICAN.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

CIRCUMSTANCES MAY EXPLAIN

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Is it right for a young lady who is engaged to a young man to have the picture of a former fiance hang in her home?

A. G.

IT is right, but scarcely in good taste to keep the picture of a former fiance in one's room.

I should think the [illegible] would dislike to be reminded of an episode in her life which must have been painful. Or, perhaps, she parted from the man in friendship, and since you do not know the circumstances you should not criticise her.

DON'T ACCEPT IT

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have been going with a young man a short time and he has moved to the country upstate, making it inconvenient to call on. His uncle and aunt, whom I have never met, and with whom he lives, have asked me to spend a week's vacation at their home.

Would it be improper for me to accept.

CONSTANT READER.

I THINK you had better wait until you meet his aunt and uncle. Your acquaintance with him has been short and, under the circumstances, you will be wise not to hurry matters. When you know him better, and have been introduced to his family, then you may visit his relatives.

TIME WILL ANSWER

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have been going with a gentleman for a short time and have grown to like him very much and I know my love is returned. During that time I made the acquaintance of a physician, who is very wealthy and who is anxious to marry me. I am twenty-three years of age and he is thirty-four. Now, what I want to know is, shall I marry for love, as the first gentleman earns only $18 per week, but it is a position for life, or shall I marry for money. I cannot say I do not like the physician, but I will admit I am very much in love with the first man.

ANXIOUS L. G.

YOU do not know your own mind and it would be folly to make a decision. Wait and think the matter over. Love is the only basis of happiness in married life and without it there is misery. Were you in love with the first young man he would so completely occupy your heart there would be no place for another. You would know so surely what you want that no one's advice would be needed, nor could you abide by it were it adverse to your desires.

My dear child, you are in love with no one as yet. Do not waste your time contemplating any kind of marriage. Wait and when the man you love asks you to marry him your mind and heart will accord in your decision.

WAIT A YEAR

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am in love with a young man of different faith than mine. He is a nice young man of [illegible] habits and is making a good salary, but our parents forbid our marriage. He [illegible] he loves me dearly and [illegible] have me for his wife. I feel that I could never live without him and certainly could never love another. If I marry him it would break my parents' hearts, and if I do [illegible] will break mine. It is the same with his parents, so we see no way out of it. I would not renounce my religion, but he would if he had no consideration for his parents, but as it is he can't.

Do you think I could forget him in time.

B. B.

YOUR position is a difficult one. It would be unwise to take steps contrary to your parents' wishes, but it is also unwise to contemplate a marriage where difference in religion is apt to disturb. I am afraid you must try to forget the young man. If your parents you are willing to forego his friendship for a year. At the end of this time if your love is as strong as ever your parents will realize your [illegible] state of mind and will yield in your favor.

Copyright, 1911, by Boston American.

Ever since the death of little Avis Linnell of Hyannis the New England public has been anxious to know "all about" the Rev. Clarence V. T. Richeson, the young pastor now locked up on the charge of murder. Those who would know all about the Rev. Mr. Richeson will have to read the Boston Sunday AMERICAN. Thomas Varland Richeson, of Richeson Mountain, Amherst, Virginia, is writing the "Story of My Boy," EXCLUSIVELY for the Sunday AMERICAN. The FIRST INSTALMENT will appear in the Sunday AMERICAN of October 29. The elder Richeson did not know Avis Linnell. He will write about the boyhood, home life, school days and college experiences of his favorite son. He tells the story in the manly, straightforward way to be expected from a typical Virginian. After a glimpse at the first pages of the chronicle, we are ready to promise Sunday AMERICAN readers the most enthralling story that has yet been written about the accused clergyman. The story is illustrated by photographs available to no other newspaper. If you read its first paragraph you will want to read every word

The Emergency Shelf

WHEN planning an "emergency cupboard" for household use have, if possible, sufficient shelves to give each section its own particular place, and should there be one to spare it can be labeled "miscellaneous." Each compartment can then be kept quite separate, and there will be no difficulty when some special article is wanted without delay.

The illness and accident section should contain a roll of medicated wool, some ordinary wadding, a bundle of soft old linen rags, a tiny roll of new flannel, (white and red,) sticking plaster, linseed meal, olive oil, embrocation, mustard leaves, spirit of camphor, ammoniated quinine, licorice powder, fruit salt, a clinical thermometer, a measuring glass, some boracic lint, an india-rubber hot-water bottle, safety pins, a pair of scissors, needles, and white cotton.

For mending household breakages the following should find a place in the cupboard: A jar of gum, a glue pot with glue, transparent gummed paper of various widths for repairing torn books and music, a bottle each of light and dark oak varnish stain, picture cord or wire, ordinary cord and tapes, a box of furniture tacks, and a small hammer.

The "traveling" section should contain a railway timetable of recent date, luggage straps of various lengths and widths, address tabs and labels, twine and strong string, a sandwich case, an air cushion, telegram forms, and a small, compact writing case with note paper, indelible pencil, etc.

Hushed Up

A Romance Founded On a Deep Mystery

By Meta Simmons

TO-DAY'S INSTALMENT

THE music tinkling faintly in the still room across the separating corridor, sounded with a maddening mockery in the ears of a woman who would dream dreams of no man, false or true, evermore.

"As though the Furies pursued him." Laurence Baring's careless thought of the man who called himself "John Saxe" was more true and apt than he could have imagined. John Martindale had fled out from the presence of the woman he had struck scourged by some very ugly things—a woman's look of frozen aversion, the ghost of a murdered love—the faint phantasm of the thing he had called his self-respect, his manhood.

He had struck a woman, a white woman, his wife.

The Lust of Cruelty

It was not horror of the thing that he had done which possessed him: it was horror at the thought that he had by his own act broken down the frail barrier between what he was and what he might become—left the way free and unimpeded for that dreadful vampire that the great spaces and the great silences of Africa had brought into being—the love of horror, the lust of cruelty for cruelty's own grim sake.

The fumes of drink had lifted; his mind was perfectly clear, yet the sense of injustice remained. She had reproached him—she had brought the blow on herself—she had tempted him to strike her, as she had tempted him to his other sins—his lies and his lying silence and the things which had grown snowball fashion about them.

He was hardly conscious of his direction, but custom, so easily is a habit formed, took him along the bridle path that lay like an ebony thread through the grass plains lying like molten silver in the moonlight, toward the tree belt that marked the village. It was a different route from that taken by Kitty; he approached it on a side where the trees were thicker, almost like one of the many entrances to the forest, where the trees come out thinly to meet the traveler and thicken into jungle with inconceivable rapidity.

The Horrors of Remorse

Plunging into this tree belt was like plunging into a cavern under the sea: the moonlight, striking through the roof of leaves, filled the aisles of the wood with a pale green twilight, here and there the trunk of a tapering palm stood forth picked out with glittering lines of silver, or the foliage of an acacia, with the heavy night dew dripping from its delicate foliage, seemed as though hung with sparkling chrysolites.

He went slowly; the spell of the place, less potent perhaps than that of the forest, yet real and binding enough, was upon him; it seemed to him that he could hear the breathing and sighing of the struggling trees, the stealthy movements of wild, woodland things stirred among the rank undergrowth. He began to forget that he had even intended to reach the village to see Gomez and tell him of the miscarriage of their plans; the intoxication of the night, more potent than that of drink, mounted to his head; he went on deeper and deeper, plunging through the dim, greenly-lit aisles of the trees, as though searching for some innermost shrine, some hidden holy of holies.

And, without knowing that he sought, he found.

A green, natural amphitheatre bathed in the crude white glare of the moon, with sentinel trees throwing their dense black shadows about it: he came on it suddenly and unawares. There was a mound in the centre of the amphitheatre, and on it, fallen and awry, what at first sight seemed a block of stone. It looked so solitary, so strange in this place of greenness and of growth that Martindale went forward and looked at it. For a moment he was startled; fallen and sidewise from the earth, a human face grinned up at him, its grotesque features set in a caricature of broad satanic laughter.

A Sense of Shame

Then he drew himself together with a sense of shame at the surprise into which he had been thrown. It was only one of the ancient steatite figures common enough on some parts of the west coast, but seldom found so far north as Nokyoro—the ugly, grinning deity of some dim, far off, forgotten religion fallen on contemptuous days, no longer worshipped, but treated with a friendly familiarity by the natives as the peasants of Ireland and Scotland treat the Brownies and the Good People.

He gave it a contemptuous kick with his foot. The action was typical of the curious mental degeneration the man had undergone in so short a time, and some crawling, darting thing that had been resting in a crevice of the fallen idol fled out and made for cover beyond the grass. Martindale, following its flashing progress, noted with a certain abstracted interest that this place of the fallen divinity was sacred to some worship: apparently some native rite was celebrated here. There was the sacred circle roughly scored in the turf, and set about with sticks each holding in the cleft a piece of fetish writing, the mysterious Mori charms which the natives set great store by.

A glimmering of the interest the old John Martindale who had dabbled in the study of such things would have felt stirred faintly in the mind of the new "John Saxe." He took one of the papers from its cleft in a stick and unfolded it.

The Printed Charm

It was a printed, not a written, charm. He did not know that such things existed; the paper was sodden with the rain, but discernible in the glare of the moonlight that was as bright as day. His eyes were a little dazed by the effects of drink and passion and fatigue, and for a moment he did not begin to realize that the characters were not Arabic, but Gothic, and the language one he was familiar with.

"Quo ibo a spiritu tuo? Et quo a facie tua fugiam?"

It was a couple of seconds before the meaning of this printed fetish penetrated to his dazed and sodden mind, but gradually the words formed themselves into a coherent whole, and as the sentences unfolded themselves, the hand holding the paper shook.

"Quo ibo a spiritu tuo?"

How did the words run in English? The unfamiliar Vulgate came to him slowly: "Whither shall I go from Thy Spirit and whither shall I flee from Thy Face?"

What was this message that had lain waiting for him in the forest? What was it the sibyl of this hidden sylvan holy of holies had to whisper to him?

"Si ascendero in coelum tu illic est si descendero in infernum ades."

"If I go into Heaven Thou are there; if I go down into Hell Thou art there also. * * *"

"Etenim illuc manus tua deducet me; et tenebit me dextera tua."

"Even there shall Thy Hand lead me. * * *"

God Had Found Him

With a loud cry that resounded through the aisles of the wood, startling the sleeping birds and making the prowling night creatures rustle affrightedly in the undergrowth, John Martindale fell on his knees.

"If I go down into Hell."

He had been down into Hell, and there God had found him, even there His Right Hand had led him.

Here, in the depth of this tropical wood, beneath the idol that had been old when Pharaoh oppressed the Israelitish slaves, the rain-sodden, half-obliterated leaf, torn from some ancient Breviary, came here by who knew what mysterious chance, spoke to him with the voice of God.

"Etinim illuc manus tua deducet me et tenebit me dextera tua."

"Even there shall Thy hand lead me." * * * In the hell his own sin and weakness and madness had created the right hand of God had held him up: the hand of God had been stretched up from that rude tufted circle that some instinct told him was not a place of sacrifice or worship, but the rude grave of one of the slaves from the village over against the wood; perhaps, for now that he looked at it more closely, he saw that the turf had recently been disturbed, the very grave of that boy who a day ago had been flogged to death—from this grave God had stretched out His hand to save him lest a worse thing befall him.

The Whip Hand

SILENTLY and stolidly the old cabman stood and watched. And only the gleam of delight in his eyes gave hint of the keen enjoyment he found in the scene before him.

For the taxi-cab had broken down, and the chauffeur was perspiring freely in his efforts to put matters right. He lifted the bonnet, poked into the works, turned the handle, and crawled underneath.

But in vain. And still the cabby made no comment.

Again the chauffeur banged. He did things to ignition sparks that couldn't ignite, and tried many mysterious screws and cranks. But, alas, in vain!

The chauffeur regarded the car hopelessly. Once he turned imploringly to the cabby.

It was then that the Jehu, with the gleam in his eye beaming brighter than before, made his first comment.

With his whip in his hand he crossed over to the chauffeur.

"'Ere, old chap," he said grimly, and held out the ancient whip. "'Ere y'are! 'It 'im with this!"

Here Is a Good Complexion for You

The secret of a good complexion is the proper treatment of the skin. The skin is composed of two layers, top outer layer or epidermis, and the lower or true skin. Through these run little tubes or canals called pores. These are the outlet of perspiration, oil or other waste matter, and when mixed with dirt and dust soon close. "Beauty is more than skin deep." Pinch your nose with thumb and forefinger and notice the oily moisture.

Look in your mirror, see the little black dots not reached by soap and water. These are closed pores, commonly termed "blackheads."

The waste matter must find a new outlet, hence pimples, blotches, blackheads, or blemishes of some description.

Every woman's toilet table should contain at least two articles, a cream to cleanse the pores and one to protect them when out of doors.

When purchasing, great care should be exercised, as the market is flooded with harmful and worthless creams. We manufacture two wonderful creams, especially for this purpose. They are called Plexo Cleansing Cream, and Plexo Greaseless Cream.

MASON URGES DIRECT VOTES

Ex-Senator William E. Mason of Illinois, speaking at the Boston City Club, appealed to Massachusetts to help Illinois in an honest election of United States senators by the direct vote of the people, and by a just reduction of the tariff that will benefit the West as well as the East.

"I do not want to be disrespectful," said the ex-senator, "but the United States Senate to-day is the most stupendous confidence game on the face of the globe. I have seen when a senator has literally set his mouth going and gone off and left it for days at a time."

Mr. Mason declared the Philippines are a millstone about our neck, saying:

"We have lost free speech because of the Philippines, and we must bend our knee before the Mikado because the Japanese know, and every one knows, that the islands can be taken in twenty-four hours. We cannot stand for the American Jew who goes back to Russia; we cannot take a strong stand for the Irish in their Home Rule campaign; we cannot take an exalted stand toward any dependent colony because we have the Philippines. These islands have already cost the government 20,000 lives and $750,000,000. I believe the people of the United States will soon see the error of their ways and give the Philippines a chance to try an independent government."

SHOOTS MAN WHO ADMITTED MURDER

GLOVERSVILLE, N. Y., Oct. 27.—A chase lasting twenty-nine hours through the woods and fields after Charles E. Baker, murderer of Norman Briggs, was brought to an end when a party of fifty deputy sheriffs cornered Baker and shot him on the Washburn farm, two miles north of this city. As the deputies closed in Baker started to run, firing as he went. Five deputies advanced upon him and fired. Two bullets took effect, and Baker dropped, seriously wounded.

RECIPE FOR WEEK KIDNEYS

The following recipe is the best that can be had for weak or disordered kidneys: "Half ounce fluid extract Buchu; half ounce Murax compound; six ounces good pure gin. Shake the bottle well each time and take one or two teaspoonfuls of the mixture after each meal and at bedtime." Any druggist will mix or supply these ingredients.

The foregoing formula comes from high medical authority and will produce quick and permanent results. It will speedily relieve backache, rheumatic pains, frequent and highly colored urination. These symptoms of kidney trouble must have prompt attention to prevent Bright's disease or diabetes.

BAIL IS READY FOR SANDFORD

PORTLAND, Me., Oct. 27.—Members of the Holy Ghost and Us Society offered bail to-day for the Rev. Frank W. Sandford, head of the sect, who is in the county jail here on a charge brought by the Federal authorities.

Since his arrest at Shiloh by United States Deputy Marshal Stevens on the charge of being responsible for the death of Charles Hughey, one of the members of his flock, while at sea, Sandford has been silent. Sandford is accused of neglecting to provide proper food and refusing to go into port to obtain proper medical care for Hughey when the latter was suffering from scurvy, from which he died.

Officials found during their investigation of conditions on board the Coronet, Sandford's yacht, that since the first of September three or four men had succumbed from scurvy, and although within four days of reaching this port, were buried at sea. Specific action, however, was taken only in the case of Hughey.

The action is the first ever brought against Sandford by federal authorities, although he has been before Maine courts a number of times on various charges, one of them being manslaughter in causing the death of a child by neglect.

The attention of the United States district attorney's office was said to have been called to conditions on the Coronet by Dr. Banks, one of the quarantine officials.

When the charge was read Sandford evaded a direct reply for some time, but eventually made the plea of "not guilty."

Hughey was a former resident of Long Island, graduate of the Friends' School at Providence, and was engaged in evangelistic work when Sandford met him. His brother, George Hughey, also died from scurvy, and was buried at sea on the recently completed voyage.

HORSE MUST PAY INHERITANCE TAX

CHICAGO, Oct. 27.—"Old Bill," a horse bequeathed $2,000 in the will of Mrs. Mary L. Mulvill, affords official quandary on how to determine his inheritance tax. Tax Collector Lincoln said: "We can determine how much a man owes us by present value tables, but I have no tables on longevity relating to horses, cats or dogs."

BLAIR CHOSEN KNIGHTS' HEAD

The Grand Commandery of Knights Templar of Massachusetts and Rhode Island elected as its head Right Eminent Sir Lafayette G. Blair, past commander of Cambridge Commandery, at the 106th annual conclave in the Masonic Temple.

Every one of the 47 subordinate commanderies was represented, nearly 300 members being present, and all the officers were in attendance except Grand Treasurer Morse. The past grand commanders at the conclave were Right Eminent Sirs Caleb Saunders, George H. Allen, John P. Sanborn, William H. H. Soule, Freeman C. Hersey, Dana J. Flanders, Edwin A. Blodgett, E. Bentley Young, Charles L. Litchfield and W. W. Barnham.

Right Eminent Sir J. Albert Blake, G. C., presided, and the devotions were led by Grand Prelate Bush. Grand Commander Blake referred to the late Past Grand Commander Samuel C. Lawrence as the one who for many years was the head and front of Masonry in this State.

MARTIN J. WALSH IDENTIFIED BY 25

The body of Martin J. # BEAUTIFY BIG AUTO CENTRE

By J. C. KERRISON.

Commonwealth avenue, from the Fens to Brighton avenue, which is rapidly becoming a motor trade centre, will next Spring present a most picturesque and attractive appearance. The City Forester is now at work beautifying the grounds along each side of this wide thoroughfare with shade trees, which in a few years will make the avenue one of the prettiest entrances to a city that can be found anywhere in this country.

Commonwealth avenue is now one of the main arteries of entrance to Boston, and it is destined to become more so in the very near future. This movement on the part of the city is a step forward, while the character of the buildings now used and of others to be constructed for motor vehicle companies along this avenue in no wise detracts from the beautifying scheme which is now being undertaken.

Enthusiastic over the refinements and appointments of the 1912 Velie line, the New England Velie agents have just returned from the annual convention held at the Velie plant in Moline, Ill. Scores of Velie agents, branch house managers and dealers from all parts of this country and as far south as Buenos Ayres attended the convention.

The object of the convention was to spread the Velie policy of absolute service and perfect satisfaction and to bring each individual dealer into closer touch with the Velie factory.

Moline was converted into a veritable Velie town. Velie pennants and electric light bulbs were seen on all sides. One of the most interesting features of the convention was the meeting of the Velie representatives in the assembly hall. Interesting talks were given on "Velie Sales," by Sales Manager George H. Lloyd; "Velie Construction," by Chief Engineer C. R. Rose; "Velie Management," by Major L. M. Fuller; "Branch House Management," by Morton H. Luce of Chicago and "Velie Publicity," by H. D. Bornstein of Boston.

In America to-day, two more daring drivers than Burman and Dawson do not exist and with two such speedy cars as the Marmons, they promise to make the Vanderbilt Cup race at Savannah, November 27, a record-breaker for the car that will lead them to the finish.

"Road racing has become a battle of tires," said Burman recently. "I learned this at Indianapolis and the car that can go through with the least tire trouble will make the best average. That is, of course, providing that the car is a consistent performer, and any one familiar with racing knows that the Marmon is the most consistent American car built, not excepting foreign cars. It was the Marmon's ease on tires which won the 500 mile classic at Indianapolis and it was my observation of the Marmon that caused me to decide to drive a Marmon at Savannah if I could secure one."

The white-line of distinction which runs around the dark-colored, painted body of the Alco five-passenger touring car now exhibited at the Alco salesroom at No. 567 Boylston street has called forth commendation from the hundreds who have inspected the car since it was recently placed in the salesroom. Manager George Hudson said:

"The interest displayed in this particular Alco is not to be wondered at when one stops to consider the character and standing of its manufacturers, and the record and reputation which the car has made, not only in the hands of our own men, but in the hands of the individual owner. From now on, purchasers of the Alco product, whether a motor car, a motor truck, or a taxicab, will deal directly with the manufacturer and not through an agency—the American Locomotive Company having adopted a policy of establishing direct factory branches in all the leading cities of the country."

BRIBE HEARING ON AT WORCESTER

WORCESTER, Oct. 27.—Judge Hall and a jury are hearing the charges against Timothy Donohue, a Worcester coal dealer, accused of attempted bribery in connection with the Worcester grade crossing investigation. Donohue is charged with attempting to bribe Michael J. Comerford of Ward 3, father of the bill calling for the investigation, by offering him $400 to cease his activities in connection with the bill. Comerford was called to the stand.

The graft charges were first exposed in the Sunday AMERICAN and have caused a sensation in Worcester County.

EXHAUSTED COOK RESCUED IN HARBOR

John M. Mangle, cook on the barge Foster, docked at the Union Fuel Company, Albany street, was found clinging to the rudder of the barge to which he had climbed after swimming about the cove for over half an hour. So exhausted was he that when a rope was lowered to him he could not hold it, and a policeman was lowered to make him fast to be hauled aboard, over the stern. Mangle was returning aboard the barge when he missed his footing and fell into the cove.

MISS KITTREDGE WEDS DETROIT MAN

Miss Clarissa M. Kittredge was wedded to Lot Morrill Hamlin of Detroit, by Rev. Paul Revere Frothingham in the Arlington Street Church. Morrill Dunn of Chicago was best man. Miss Kittredge had no bridesmaids, her only attendant being her sister, Miss Ethel Kittredge, as maid of honor, who was preceded by little Miss Priscilla Stevens and William Richmond of New York as the flower maid and page. Her uncle, Frederick Stevens of New York, escorted her to the altar and her mother, Mrs. Jeremiah Kittredge, gave her away.

ENGLAND STACKS UP GOLD.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—The report of the English mint estimates the amount of gold coin in circulation in the United Kingdom at £113,000,000, an increase of £13,000,000 since 1900. The phrase "in circulation" includes the amount of gold held by banks in their coffers, which is steadily increasing.

YOUNG ELIOT IN SUFFRAGE PLAY

Samuel A. Eliot, Jr., grandson of Dr. Charles W. Eliot, will be leading man in a suffrage play in the New England Women's Club rooms Saturday night, although Dr. Eliot has decided anti-suffrage sentiments, but the young Harvard student, it is said, favors the course and is a Socialist as well.

The farce, "Another Pair of Socks," will be managed by Mrs. Martha Murray Morris, whose daughter, Miss Mary Morris, will be leading lady. The play pictures a situation in which there are women plumbers, caterers, messengers and mechanics, who fill their husbands' places while the latter are on strike, though the background is a simple home scene. The curtain falls on the grandson of Dr. Eliot demonstrating his skill with the needle.

Mrs. Morris, Miss Kate Parsons of Wellesley, 1911, one of Miss Margaret Foley's band of automobile campaigners, and Miss Jessie Arguello complete the cast.

FORFEITS FORTUNE FOR LOVE OF LAD

GALVESTON, Tex., Oct. 27.—Isabella Koenig, a winsome girl of twenty years, gave up a fortune of $400,000 for the love of a young man she met while on her way from her home in Germany to join her aunt, Mrs. George Elsberg of Fredericksburg, Tex. Mrs. Elsberg is seventy years old, and had selected Isabella as her heir. At Bremen the young heiress met and fell in love with Wendon Phillips, a clerk, of Los Angeles. Upon reaching here it was found that the aunt seriously objected to the alliance. She declared she would cut the girl off without a cent in her will if she married within five years. The heiress made the sacrifice and the ceremony was performed.

WIDOW SUES WEALTHY LYNN MAN FOR $2,000

An attachment has been recorded in an action of contract for $2,000 brought by Mrs. Evelyn A. Bangs against John A. Herne, a wealthy real estate broker and insurance agent. Mrs. Bangs, who is fifty years of age, is the widow of a prominent Washington physician and was formerly housekeeper in a house where Herne resided. It is said that Herne had been a frequent caller at Mrs. Bangs's apartments up to a short time ago, when his visits ceased. He also has left town.

OLD SERVANT LEAVES WEALTH TO MASTER

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 27.—Mrs. Alice Quinn, eighty years old, for years a recluse supposed to be destitute, died possessed of more than $25,000, practically all of which she bequeathed to the family of J. Newbold Edgar, a wealthy man of New York, for whom she once worked as a servant and by whom she had been pensioned.

LONDON MAN LOCATES WIFE IN BROCKTON

BROCKTON, Oct. 27.—After a search of several months for his wife, A. G. Stebbins of London has succeeded in locating her in this city at the home of her cousin, James Z. Towers of No. 754 Montello street. Mrs. Stebbins said she fled from her husband last February after he had tried to kidnap their daughter Elsie.

FINE PROGRAM BY RUSSIAN DANCERS

Delibes' Ballet Coppelia was performed last night at the Boston Opera House by the Russian dancers. The beautiful music was as acceptable as ever and the graceful and effective pantomime of the dancers was very entertaining. In addition to the ballet the Balalaika orchestra performed folk songs of Russia and American numbers, while the Russian Grand Opera quartet was heard in several pieces. The whole made an extremely interesting and delightful entertainment of a novel character. The dancers, the Balalaika orchestra and the Russian singers will give their final performance to-night at the Boston Opera House.

WIFE, IN BOSTON, SUES W. W. BALKE

CINCINNATI, Oct. 27.—A romance ended when a petition was filed in court by Catherine McKeown Balke asking divorce from Walter W. Balke, president of the Balke & Perry Shoe Company and a member of a prominent and wealthy family of Cincinnati. They were married in 1900. Mr. Balke first met Miss McKeown when she was the prize pupil at the college of music. It was predicted by the faculty that Miss McKeown would some day make a great name. She was persuaded to give up her musical career and marry Mr. Balke. Mr. Balke owns a shoe plant at Haverhill, Mass. The attorney for Mrs. Balke said she was now in Boston.

BOSTON MAN HEADS STATE'S RED MEN

HOLYOKE, Oct. 27.—The officers of the Great Council of Massachusetts of the Improved Order of Red Men, were installed at the Great Council sitting. The following chiefs were placed on the stumps: Great prophet, John W. Converse, Boston; great sachem, T. R. Emond, Holyoke; great senior sagamore, Henry O. Fourcey, Waltham; great junior sagamore, S. W. Sawyer, Fitchburg; great chief of records, Alexander Gilmore, Boston; great keeper of wampum, Jules Beauregard, Fall River.

TAX ON UNMARRIED.

BERLIN, Oct. 27.—The Diet of Reuss, elder branch, has sanctioned a surtax on unmarried men and women over thirty of 5 per cent. on incomes of from $750 to $1,500 and 10 per cent. on higher amounts.

TO CLEAN UP NEW YORK CITY

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—Speaking to an immense gathering of citizens held at Cooper Union in the interest of good government for New York, Controller Prendergast aroused a storm of enthusiasm by declaring that before the fusion government goes out of office it proposes "to clean up the city," and that if the Board of Aldermen or Mayor Gaynor blocks the cleaning-up movement by withholding the necessary funds, they will be raised by popular subscription.

"If the appropriation which we will put into the city budget for this purpose be cut out," said Mr. Prendergast, "I will tell you what we propose to do. We are going to go outside and get the money by private subscription and clean the city up before this fusion administration gets through."

"Tammany does not seem rejoiced over the return of Mr. Hearst to the Democracy," said Mr. Prendergast.

"But it is not so very many years ago that these same gentlemen welcomed Mr. Hearst and made him their candidate for Governor."

"As one of those to whom Mr. Hearst by his disinterestedness and by a fine exhibition of civic pride in behalf of decent government helped to elect to office two years ago, I want to say that I believe in Mr. Hearst. We do not agree upon national politics, but his course as a citizen in fighting for the rights of the people, and especially for the fight he has made in this city for clean municipal government, should not be overlooked by the people of Greater New York."

TRAIN DELAYED WITH WORKERS

Thousands of people on their way to work in Boston to-day were delayed when the train that left Mattapan at 7:40 o'clock was disabled near the Cedar Grove station. Four trains that followed were tied up. The accident was caused by the blowing out of a cylinder plug.

The passengers walked to the Ashmont station and took electric cars. Hundreds of others who waited at the Shawmut and Field's Corner stations also had recourse to the electrics, and, although additional cars were put on, there was a big crush.

Shortly after 8:30 o'clock an extra locomotive arrived and pushed the train into the South station.

RETIRED MERCHANT FOUND INJURED

The police are investigating the case of William F. Greeley, eighty-one, who was found unconscious in the gutter near No. 17 Beach street, in the South End, with a deep gash over his forehead. He is a retired business man and a few months ago inherited $20,000. He is in the City Hospital, where his condition is serious.

When Greeley left the Quincy House he had a large roll of bills but when he was found he had a solitary $20 bill with his checkbook. The police are trying to ascertain whether he had been robbed or had spent the money.

DIVORCE FROM 115-POUND WIFE REFUSED

The divorce libel of Fred A. Kemp, weight 140 pounds, who testified against his 115-pound wife that he was the subject of cruel and abusive treatment, has been dismissed by Judge Hardy. Kemp said that while he was living in Mexico he taught his wife how to shoot a revolver. Later, according to his testimony, he was threatened with death by his wife.

REFUSE TO ANNUL BRINE MARRIAGE

The petition of Frank R. Brine of Brookline, who asked that his marriage to Miss Nettie Dolan be annulled on the ground that he had been forced into a marriage to her at the point of her father's revolver, was denied by Judge Hardy. Dolan denied in toto the allegations of his son-in-law. Testimony showed that the taxicab bill on the wedding day was $17.

Horses and Carriages.

As I Have Bought Auto Truck I WILL SELL MY Horse, Wagon & Harness

ALSO LIGHT HARNESS
ALSO PUNG AND ALL
GOODS USED WITH OUTFIT
ALL FOR $115, OR SELL SEPARATE

THE HORSE is blood bay, is 8 years old, is fat and pretty, has long tail and mane, can road 10 miles an hour and pull 1½ tons up any hill; he weighs about 1,150 lbs., can be harnessed and driven by inexperienced person, is fearless of all known objects, including automobiles and steam cars; he would make a nice horse for business, family, pleasure or farm; I paid $250 for him when he was 6 years old; he is just 8 years old next month, and if anyone in the country will buy him I will pay freight on him, providing he gets a good home; I have used him over the road selling my goods and find I can make better time with the auto truck, is the only reason for selling; my wagon is in fine condition, and also harnesses and pung; I will sell horse separate very cheap to go to the country; also rest of my goods at bargain; remember, all for $115, or any part cheap for cash; I will allow a trial of 30 days to test horse in every way; the wagon and harness is in the best of condition; now, any gentleman or lady in search of a first class horse should call and see, as it is in every way as represented, and can be seen at boarding stable, 1233 Columbus av., Roxbury Crossing, Boston, Mass.; Tel. 22756 Roxbury; take any Roxbury Crossing car from North or South Station; few minutes' ride; ask any car conductor for Roxbury Crossing, he will direct you; stable right opposite Roessle Brewery. P. S.—Ask for Mr. D. Baxter's property; also 2 blankets with outfit.

$85 BUYS PRINCESS WILKES

HANDSOME CHERRY BAY, foaled in 1905, weight about 1,075 lbs., round turned and shapely built and very handsome, is standard bred and registered, is a natural roadster of 9, 10 or 11 miles an hour, and has been trial miles in 2:16 and 2:16½ over a half-mile track; she has also been halves on the speedway in 1:03; she is worth $100; for a brood mare her breeding cannot be beat, as she is sired by a grandson of George Wilkes; breeding furnished to purchaser; she has not a blemish of any kind, is perfectly fearless of all objects on the road, is very well mannered and will drive with open bridle; I think if she were properly trained and handled she would trot close to 2:10, as she has not been handled for speed since she was 4 years old; anyone looking for a first-class speed, family or road horse, she is worth $300 to them. I will allow 30 days' trial to anyone who buys her; the reason I am selling is I have purchased a racing automobile; for further information call at my residence, MR. HARRY THORPE, 17 Upton st.; tel. 2119-R Trem.; take any Shawmut av. or Tremont st. car from North or South Stations; ask conductor to let you off at Upton st. P. S.—To the buyer I will sell my buggy, harness and sleigh for $30.

Who Disturbs Business?

The Facts Show That Stand-Pat Republicans Like Lodge and Crane Bring Disaster to Business and to the Workingmen Whenever They Revise the Tariff to Give More Graft to the Big Contributors to Their Campaign Fund

When the longest legislative session in the history of Massachusetts closed last Summer, and the difficult and constructive part of Governor Foss's labors, the part which makes or mars an administration, was over, everybody, from Berkshire to Essex, admitted that the Governor had done his work so well that he could not be defeated.

But Senators Lodge and Crane realized that the effect of this election upon the fortunes of the stand-patters throughout the country would be important enough to justify a superhuman effort. Therefore, they decided to try money and demagogery as substitutes for real issues and honest arguments.

These gentlemen think that there may be still another election in the old, thread-bare tariff calamity howl to the workingmen and the small business men who might not know any better.

The doleful prologue of their dirge is the story that when the Democratic party revised the tariff in 1893 a panic followed. This is an old story and has been exposed as a reckless and grotesque falsehood over and over again.

But it is a favorite yarn of Senator Lodge's and he has repeated it so often that perhaps he believes it now. However, the yarn was duly fed to Mr. Frothingham and has been obediently repeated by him throughout the State.

The AMERICAN challenges Senators Lodge and Crane or Mr. Frothingham to refute these facts:

The McKinley tariff bill became a law on October 6, 1890. This was a Republican tariff revision upwards, passed by a Republican Congress and signed by a Republican President, Senator Lodge participating in its making and voting for it at every stage of its parliamentary course.

On November 11, 1890, a little more than a month after that Republican tariff law went into effect, the first signs of the panic appeared.

On November 17, 1890, Barker Brothers, the Philadelphia bankers, suspended with liabilities of five million dollars and the clearing houses of both New York and Boston voted its certificates to banks in need of assistance.

On November 19 there was a run on the Citizens' Savings Bank of New York, and a receiver was appointed for the North River Bank.

On November 22 the United Rolling Stock Company of Chicago assigned, with liabilities of nine millions.

On November 28 Jamieson & Company, bankers, of Philadelphia, failed with liabilities of two millions.

On December 6 the Oliver Iron Steel Mills of Pittsburg shut down, throwing two thousand men out of employment, and, on the same day, Myer & Company of New Orleans failed, owing two millions.

On January 3, 1891, still during the Republican administration and while the Republican McKinley bill remained a law, three different Pennsylvania mills closed, throwing ten thousand men out of work.

January 18, the American National Bank of Kansas City suspended, owing two millions and a quarter.

May 8, the Spring Garden National Bank stopped business and so did the Pennsylvania Safe Deposit Trust Company.

The year 1892, still during the Republican administration and while the Republican tariff law was still in full force, saw strike after strike, in which the workingmen were resisting attempted reductions in wages, which culminated in the great Homestead strike and riot.

In 1893, while the McKinley Republican bill was still in full force, there were more than fifteen thousand failures in the United States, involving losses amounting to three hundred and forty-six million dollars.

In 1894, after the Democratic tariff revision had gone into effect, the number of failures fell to thirteen thousand and the amount involved fell to one hundred and seventy-three millions, or less than half.

The next year the number of failures was nearly one thousand less and the amount involved remained about half.

The entire history of Republican tariff grafting since the Civil War has been a history of panics and disaster, poverty, strikes, riots, bankruptcy and ruin. The panic of 1873, under Republican control of every branch of our government, was the worse financial and business disaster the world has ever known. More than three million workingmen were out of employment during the period of that ruinous panic.

The Republicans revised the tariff twice between 1881 and 1886, and during that period there were labor strikes involving twenty-two thousand establishments and almost a million and a half of workingmen. Almost four thousand five hundred of these strikes were against the reduction of wages.

In the year 1883, there were nine thousand business failures involving one hundred and seventy-two million dollars.

In 1884, there were ten thousand failures involving two hundred eighty-six thousand dollars. In 1884 there was a continued business depression and more than one million men were out of employment.

High protection gives a few men unnatural profits at the cost of the people's necessaries of life, and compels Americans to pay more for American goods than the foreigner pays for the same goods, even after the cost of transporting them to the foreign lands is added.

It has swept our commerce from the seas. It has brought cheap foreign labor to the very doors of our mills to compete with American labor, working for lower wages because their standard of living is lower.

It is the falsest thing that false men ever invented or defended. It does not protect American labor, but has steadily brought us down to the European level. In whatever industry protection is highest, there wages are the lowest. It does not foster infant industries, but fattens the gigantic trusts.

It robs us all in [illegible]verything we need to make existence possible, corrupts o[illegible] politi[illegible] [illegible]egrades our political morals.

ONE OF OUR FERRY BOATS HAS DISAPPEARED FROM IT'S SLIP!
COME WATSO, TO THE DOCK! BRING THE BINOCULARS!
THERE'S WHERE SHE WAS MOORED!
EVIDENTLY THE FORCE OF THE TIDE BROKE THE ROPE!
NO, WATSO, THIS ROPE WAS CUT WITH A SHARP KNIFE!
BY JOVE, I DIDN'T KNOW THAT SHEDDER CRABS COULD CLIMB UP A SPILE ON TO A DOCK!
THEY COULDN'T, WATSO! — SOMEBODY DROPPED THOSE CRABS!
HAIL THAT MOTOR BOAT, WATSO!
AHOY THERE!
THERE'S THE MISSING FERRYBOAT NOW, WATSO!
ASTOUNDING!
SAY, NERVO, DON'T YOU KNOW HUNDREDS OF COMMUTERS ARE WAITING FOR THAT FERRY BOAT?
WELL, I WANTED TO FISH AND I COULDN'T SEE ANOTHER BOAT ANYWHERE!
SHERLOCKO COULDN'T HAVE CLEARED UP THIS MYSTERY IF YOU HADN'T DROPPED SOME OF YOUR SHEDDER CRAB BAIT ON THE DOCK!

Sherlocko the Monk, with his friend, Dr. Watso, is now a regular feature of the Sunday AMERICAN. Don't miss the funny detective work of Sherlocko in the Sunday AMERICAN.

Old Doc Powers

A Celebrated Gentleman, Known to One and All Who Read the Boston Sunday AMERICAN, Is About to Come Before Us in a New Role—Yes, Sir; Tom Powers Has Turned Philosopher

Mr. Thomas E. Powers, philosopher, is about to make his bow in the Sunday AMERICAN.

You all know Powers. He is the inventor of the marvelously interesting cartoons called the Joys and Glooms. Mr. Powers is also the gentleman who, a while back, had all the United States saying "Never Again." He organized the Down and Out Club, and he selected all its members. He is a very funny little man, Mr. Powers is.

But now—whether for better or worse we do not care to say—the genial Powers has turned philosopher. He has been studying life. He has arrived at certain conclusions about the queer old world we live in. He doesn't care much about writing, and spelling, and the like of that, and so "Dr." Powers made his conclusions into a drawing. He uses the Joys and Glooms in order to drive home every point.

Mr. Powers has been considering two kinds of man. He has considered the man who toils hard all his days, in order that he may own a home in the evening of his life and have a bit in the bank to fall back on. Also he has given some thought to the happy-go-lucky citizen, who couldn't tell you the exact location of a single savings bank in town, but who grows old just as surely as the other fellow.

You will be very much interested in what Mr. Powers has to say about these two types of man. When you see Mr. Powers's "moral" you will say that this is the best thing the funny-picture man has done.

Some of the young men who write our best stories and work the hardest in order that the Sunday AMERICAN may always be the best of New England's Sunday papers are apt to complain, once in awhile, of the great and overshadowing popularity of the picture-makers. Everywhere they go, these young writers tell us, people want to know about Powers and Opper and Fisher and the "chap who does the Katzenjammers."

Whether our young friends and co-workers are justified or not in this feeling of peevishness we do not care to say, but we will say this:

They'll be more jealous than ever on Sunday when they see the first effort of Thomas E. Powers, Ph. D.

Our Pedigrees

By PERCY SHAW

(One View.)

'TIS sweet to sit before a fire
Like our good friend
John D.,
And with a placid soul admire
Our Royal Pedigree.
'Tis sweet to feel that when we deign
To arch our noble brow
We make a picture of disdain
But rarely witnessed now.

(The Other View.)

Our ancestors, ah, how they thrill;
One drowned in Malmsey wine,
Some lost their heads on Tower
Hill;
Some fled the battle line.
The men were gay, the ladies fair,
We see them as they went,
And thank them kindly for their share
In our ennoblement.

John D.'s got a pedigree, eh?
Sure he's stung, don't tell me;
Comes down from a kink too, aw say.

That ain't no family tree.
Look at here, I'd offer him mine,
Guaranteed to be straight.
Not one break in the whole durned line,
His'n at a big cut rate.

It never done me any good.
Them old things get so stale;
I'd like to see John, if I could
We might fix up a sale.
I'm from Adam, I am, how's that?
You say you are, so's he?—

Holly Gee, keep it under your hat,
John's related to me.

Little Bobbie

He Writes About Visiting a Cousin

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

PA & Ma & me was away on a vacashun for a few weeks, Pa wanted to go to Italy but Ma needed her new furs, wich needed to be fixed, so we didnt go to Italy, we went to Haverhill, ware Ma has a cuzzin. Ma sed to Pa that her cuzzin owned half of Haverhill, & he sed that the latch string wud always be on the outside of the door.

That sounds good, sed Pa, but the question is, how does the latch string work after ten o'clock P. M. That is the main thing, Pa sed, anybody can use a latch string in the middle of the day, but wen you pull it latt at nite & it doesent eeven quiver, that is a other story.

Poor Pa, he seems to always git things rite, the way thay are going to happen after. Sure enuff, wen we got oaver to see Ma's cuzzin, he was a funny looking littel fat German & his wife was large & tall. She was awful good to her husband, too. She used to roll his chair up to the fire & git out his carpet slippers. She toald Ma that the reeson she always got out his carpet slippers was beekaus she wanted to hide his shoes & the roads is awful muddy in Haverhill.

After we had dinner the first nite, Pa & Ma & the other peepul talked a long time, & then Pa beegan for to yawn & sed, well, let us step down to the corner, Amiel, & git the base ball final. I want to see if the Giants got another kick in the shins or not.

I hardly ever, if evver, go out after I have dined, sed Ma's cuzzin Amiel. I usually stay in, in fack. Pa kep winking at him & nodding his hed to the door, but Ma's cuzzin nevver eeven looked. He was dreeming & looking into the fireplace.

Pa didént dreem. He put on his coat & hat & started for the door. Husband, sed Ma, whare are you going? I am going to git a final baseball edishun of the eevening paper, sed Pa. I shall return presently. Then Pa gaiv a last long look at Mister Amiel & went out into the nite.

It seems to me that you havent got yure husband trained rite, sed Amiel's wife to ma. I wish I had a husband like that for a few weeks. I think I wud know where I stood.

I think you wud, sed Ma. My deer hubby is a grate hand for showing wives whare they stand. But he is a deer good boy, for all that, sed Ma. He is brissling with faults, like a porcupine, but we manage to git along. There is sumthing invabel about him that maiks me think moar of him than all the rest of the men in the world, & I wud nevver think of keeping him in the house wen he wanted to go out for a visit with the boys.

Maybe you are rite, sed Ma's cuzzin's wife. Amiel, you may go and get yure reglar shoes & go out & join yure frend.

I doant want them, sed Ma's cuzzin Amiel. I wud rather look at the fire place.

Wen I toald Pa about it the next morning Pa toald me the story of The Prisoner of Chillon, he sed the poor man was in jail so long that wen thay came to talk him out he didént want to go. Amiel is another such, Pa sed to me. Wen you git married, Bobbie, sed Pa, nevver be a prisoner of Chillon.

Don't miss the Adventures of Harold Hangover, W. F. Kirk's baseball hero, who has gone on the stage for the Winter, in the Sunday AMERICAN.
